Public Power Merger Completed With Rate Cuts Expected Soon

Power-Packed Session Ends

By FRANK RUTTER

The legislative session that began with New Year's "goodwill" resolutions on all sides ended Thursday night, the longest in 42 years, after two fierce and bitter weeks of debate on power and politics.

Early Election Threat

OTTAWA—Prime Minister John Diefenbaker today threatened to dissolve parliament and go to the country in an immediate general election if the Opposition did not stop "filibustering."

The threat was made during the morning question period after a number of questions were directed at the prime minister about the government's election plans, by Liberal front benches.

"In view of the Opposition filibustering," said Mr. Diefenbaker, "it may be necessary to make an early answer which will satisfy" Opposition members.

EXAMPLE SET

He was replying to a plea voiced by J. W. Pickersgill, former Liberal immigration minister, to follow the example set by former Prime Minister St. Laurent in 1949 and state "frankly and in a statesmanlike way" what the government's intentions are.

The exchange was sparked by another Liberal front bench, former Liberal health minister Martin. He cited an earlier statement by External Affairs Minister Howard Green that a heads-of-state meeting may be held in Geneva shortly and asked whether this would interfere with any plans of the prime minister. He was obviously referring to Mr. Diefenbaker's plans for an election.

The prime minister did not reply directly. However, he said that Mr. Martin had personal motives for calling for an election.

TAUNT HURLED BACK

Mr. Martin thumped his desk in applause for the prime minister's declaration, but no one else did.

"He is the only one who applauds," noted Mr. Diefenbaker. He went on to say that Mr. Martin wanted an election because he was anxious to replace Lester Pearson as leader of the Opposition.

Mr. Martin jumped to his feet and shouted that Mr. Diefenbaker's successor would be the "present leader of the Opposition."

Mr. Pickersgill then took the floor and asked the prime minister to disclose his election plans.

Majority opinion appears to single out June 18 as the most likely date.

Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes prorogued the House at 8:15 p.m. to climax two weeks of day and night sittings which brought the 45-day session to a close. There were 17 night sittings.

The ceremony made law of the two bills which precipitated the temper of the punishing finale.

Bill 84, merging B.C. Electric and B.C. Power Commission; Bill 85, changing last August's B.C. Electric takeover legislation to kill recourse to the courts for shareholders seeking better compensation.

Mr. Pearkes made a brief speech singling out various pieces of legislation as noteworthy accomplishments of the session.

He mentioned the B.C. Electric-Power Commission merger as "benefit to the people and industry of the province."

But he made no mention at all of the other big power bill.

Two Chairmen For B.C. Hydro

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Legislative Reporter

The new B.C. Hydro and Power Authority today took over all B.C. Electric and B.C. Power Commission operations.

The merger was completed at a special cabinet meeting Thursday night immediately after the end of the legislative session which set up the new authority.

Reductions of up to 20 per cent in electric light bills for all residents of the province served by the new authority are expected within the next few days.

With the proclamation of the special act merging the public power utilities, the cabinet also appointed two men to run jointly the new agency.

Sharing the job of chairman at a salary of $40,000 each are Dr. Gordon Shrum, former B.C. Electric chairman, and Dr. H. L. Keenleyside, former boss of the power commission.

Seven other directors were appointed:

Einar Gunderson, who gets $27,500;
W. C. Mearns, $27,500;
A. Lee, $27,500;
Lands, Forests and Water Resources Minister Ray Williston and Mines Minister Kenneth Kiernan, with no extra salary;
F. A. Smith and J. Dunsmuir, will receive directors' fees of $2,500 each.
Dr. Shrum, Dr. Keenleyside, Mr. Gunderson, Mr. Mearns and Mr. Lee were also appointed to the executive management committee which will run actual operation of the new B.C. Hydro.
Mr. Williston, Mr. Kiernan, Mr. Smith and Mr. Dunsmuir are directors only.
All the directors were either on the board of B.C. Electric or on the power commission.

Two BCE Directors Dropped

Two B.C. Electric directors, former lieutenant-governor Frank M. Ross and lawyer Arthur Fouks are dropped from the new agency.

Dr. Keenleyside's salary is doubled with his new appointment. Dr. Shrum gets the same as he did with B.C. Electric.

With the merger comes a new legal twist to the battle by former B.C. Electric shareholders for better compensation and cancellation of last August's takeover legislation. B.C. Electric assets were placed in the hands of a receiver by the courts two weeks ago.

But the merger eliminates B.C. Electric, puts its assets under the new B.C. Hydro, and bans any court action regarding the former private utility. Whether or not this cancels the receivership is not yet clear.

But a court judgment on the government's appeal of this action is expected within days. Two other power developments followed the merger order today.

Mr. Williston was officially sworn into office as minister of water resources as well as lands and forests.

The ceremony took place at 9 a.m. at Government House. A new department of water resources was established by the legislature.

The other new move was appointment of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce as banker for B.C. Hydro.

AFTER 75-FOOT FALL

Tot Saved From Niagara Gorge

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—A three-year-old girl was rescued early today 11 hours after she fell 75 feet to a rocky ledge above the Niagara River gorge.

She will be released from hospital this afternoon. April Hubbard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hubbard, was cold, frightened, and hungry, but suffered only minor scratches and bruises in the fall that was broken by a tree and soft mud.

April's rescuers were four men who belong to a newly formed rescue unit. They continued to climb the treacherous walls of the gorge three hours after full-scale searching was called off by darkness.

Off-duty Stamford Township Police Sgt. Russell Sanderson, playing his flashlight over the rocks, spotted the girl as she rested on a wet rock.

"She was huddled on her back against the base of a sheer wall," Sgt. Sanderson said.

"Her hands were tightly clenched under her chin, and below her was a strip of loose rock at about a 60 degree angle."

With Sgt. Sanderson were Richard Gorman, a rigger for Ontario Hydro, and George Williams and Ben Schweitzer.

"She was shivering, wide awake, and frightened, but she never even cried—not even a whimper—although she was soaking wet," said Gorman.

April tumbled down the gorge wall while she was playing with some young friends during the afternoon. Her companions—if they were aware she had fallen—were too young to give police an accurate picture of what had happened.

The scene of the mishap was about a quarter-mile below the falls. The girl was brought to the top of the gorge in a fire department rescue basket about 3:15 a.m.

REPORTS ON GENEVA TALKS

Green Sees Hope of Agreement

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Green said today he gets annoyed "with all this attitude of hopelessness" about disarmament, Berlin and nuclear tests.

The remark was fairly typical of his folksy report to the Commons on the Geneva disarmament conference from which he returned Thursday night.

He said there is no reason why there shouldn't be East-West agreement on at least some disarmament points fairly soon.

The minister said Canada's main purpose at the conference was to pinpoint subjects on which there is near agreement between the United States and Russia. There were "quite a few" of these areas where it wouldn't take a great deal of effort to get the two sides together.

Mr. Green said he hopes that "before too long" agreement will be reached on the preamble for a disarmament treaty.

Paul Martin (L-Exeter East) said that if this were the measure of foreseeable achievement, one could see the great difficulty in reaching a comprehensive agreement.

Mr. Green said he believes there would be "great value" in acceptance of the Canadian proposal for a nuclear ban in outer space.

There was no reason why agreement couldn't be reached on this matter. Once weapons of mass destruction were in orbit, it would be "much tougher" to do anything about it.

Mr. Green said there has been a suggestion for informal meetings at the conference at which no record could be kept and delegates could "let their hair down."

Mr. Green did not repeat in the Commons his comments about U.S. policy which he made to reporters Thursday night at the airport.

He told reporters then that any resumption of U.S. nuclear testing would be a setback for the conference and that "usually" Canada has better ideas than the U.S.

H. W. Herridge, parliamentary leader of the CCF-NDP group, said he admires Mr. Green's stubborn determination to remain undismayed by the difficulties at Geneva.

Mr. Green's "self-effacing, mule-like qualities" had proved very valuable and his report to the House was one of the best ever delivered in the Commons.

Algeria War Flares As 5 Moslems Slain

ALGIERS (Reuters)—The terrorist Secret Army Organization exploded 20 plastic bombs and killed five Moslems and wounded 18 in sub-machine-gun attacks in Moslem quarters of Algiers during the night.

Four of the Moslems died when the European terrorists opened fire on a large apartment building in Pointe Peccade, a seaside suburb, and the fifth was killed in the Bir Mandreis quarter where most of the plastic bombs were planted.

Many of the bombs were placed beneath cars and trucks in Bir Mandreis and when they exploded, terrorists lying in ambush opened fire on the Moslems who ran out onto the streets.

In Bone, eastern Algeria, four armed, masked men got away with 1,200,000 new francs (about $252,000) today when they held up a bank.

The men were believed to be Secret Army agents using robbery to build up the terrorist treasury.

12 MORE DIE

Officials said 12 persons were killed and 29 wounded in sporadic acts of violence throughout Algeria Thursday.

Gunmen netted 320,000 new francs (about $68,000) in seven holdups during the day.

The 17-man Franco-Algerian executive was meeting at the Rocher-Noir administrative centre to take over temporary rule of Algeria, led by Moslem President Abderrahmane Fares and European Vice-President Roger Roth.

MOTEL OWNERS BUY C & C TAXI

Heaney Cartage Sold For Nearly $1 Million

Heaney Cartage and Storage Ltd. has been sold to a Vancouver firm, it was announced today on the heels of news that the C & C Transportation Company also has changed hands.

The two transactions, involving firms among the oldest of their kind in Victoria, were entirely separate. Both will continue operating under their present names.

Johnston National Storage Ltd., biggest cartage and storage company in Canada, bought out the Heaney firm for almost $1,000,000.

C & C, which operates a fleet of more than 50 taxis and buses, was bought by Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Nordal, Victoria motel operators, for an undisclosed sum.

STAYS AS DIRECTOR

William Heaney, scion and majority shareholder of the family firm established in 1890, will continue as a director and also will join the board of the Johnston National Storage.

Metropolitan Victoria 14th Largest in Canada

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The population of Victoria's metropolitan area soared to 154,132 in 1961, an increase of 36.2 per cent in the past 10 years, according to the report of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics based on the latest census.

The population of the incorporated city of Victoria alone now stands at 54,941, an increase of 7 per cent in the last decade.

Fully 60 per cent of Canada's population growth in the 1951-61 decade took place within the metropolitan area boundaries of 17 major centres in Canada, including Winnipeg, with over two-thirds of this metropolitan growth occurring outside the main central cities.

HIGH RATE
The 1961 census indicates that the growth within metropolitan areas is continuing at a high rate compared with the rest of Canada.

Victoria's metropolitan area census in 1961 stood at 154,132 compared with 113,829 in 1956 and 113,207 in 1951. The percentage increase in the period 1951 to 1961 was 36.2 per cent; in the 1956-61 period it was 35.2 per cent and from 1951 to 1956 it was 18.2 per cent.

For the incorporated city of Victoria alone the population figure in 1961 was shown as 54,941 compared with 54,584 and 51,331 in 1951. These are percentage increases of 7.0 per cent in the decade 1951 to 1961, 0.7 per cent in the period 1956 to 1961 and 6.3 per cent in the period 1951-56.

The metropolitan area of Victoria was the 14th largest in Canada in population. The first was Montreal, second was Toronto, third was Vancouver and fourth Winnipeg. (See Page 29.)

FULTON DENIES INDIANS HURT

OTTAWA (CP)—Acting Citizenship Minister Fulton said today in the Commons that charges of neglect of an Indian band near Fort Nelson, B.C., appeared unfounded.

He said the Indian superintendent at Fort St. John, B.C., visited the Prophet band last week and there was no shortage of food.

An investigation would be made immediately and any necessary remedial action would be taken on the spot.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. — Police reported Johnny Ellis, 34, of nearby Lookout Mountain did all this in a busy four hours Thursday night:

- went to jail charged with drunkenness.
- went to a hospital for treatment of a head cut.
- overpowered a hospital orderly and escaped.
- held up a liquor store attendant across town and took $46.
- backed out the door of the store into the open arms of a detective.
- went back to jail charged with armed robbery.

RENO, Nev.—George Farley, of Ogden, Utah, managed not to lose his shirt Thursday in a gambling casino.

Farley told police someone removed his hat and shoes and stole two traveller's cheques while he dozed in the casino's rest area.

PARIS.—Top fashion model Anna-Lisa Cameron committed suicide here because her age was revealed, police reported Thursday.

The tall, ashblonde—known as The Great Anna in the Paris fashion world—barely looked the 30 she claimed to be but actually was 40, police reported.

The Swedish-born model was travelling to Munich by train Saturday with other models for the Paris fashion house of Nina Ricci to give a showing.

A frontier official noted that her passport's listing of her age had been obliterated by a cigarette burn. He asked to see her French identity card. There, too, her date of birth—Jan. 30, 1922—had been defaced.

In tears, The Great Anna admitted in front of the other women that she was 40.

She left the group and her body, with the wrists slashed, was found Monday.

It isn't that Virgil doesn't want to go.

Trouble is, he's only four. Besides that, Virgil hasn't learned to write.

When asked what branch of service he preferred, the four-year-old answered: "Fireman."

LONGLEAT, Eng.—The Marquis of Bath has invited Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy to visit his stately home here the next time she is in England.

Lord Bath, 57, who saw a television broadcast of the First Lady in a guided tour of the White House, said: "I thought Mrs. Kennedy's program gave us a thrilling insight into the American way of life and I would like her to see what a typical English house looks like."

Daily Express columnist William Hickey said Lord Bath shows that he has "a slight misconception of how the average American or Englishman lives."

CITIZENS RALLY TO AID

Starvation, Sickness Hit B.C. Indian Tribe

FORT NELSON, B.C. (CP)—Residents of this community 500 miles northwest of Edmonton rallied Thursday to the aid of a band of 59 Indians reported to be infected with hepatitis and suffering from acute malnutrition.

Church groups, women's organizations and others gathered food, furniture, clothing and drugs as word of the plight of the Prophet Reserve Indians spread.

Distribution of the goods was hampered by melting snows which turned roads into deep, sticky mud. The reserve is 61 miles south of here.

Heavy winter snows have made moose and other animals scarce.

Prophet River Indians, who live by hunting and trapping, include about 20 children. Most live in shacks, some abandoned more than 20 years ago by the United States Army during construction of the Alaska Highway. There are no modern sanitation facilities.

Dr. Ray March, the only doctor in Fort Nelson, said Thursday:

"I found them lying on the floors of the 10 or 11 little shacks they live in. They were incredibly dirty, sick and virtually starving."

"I called the Indian agent, Joe Galibois, and told him to get some food down there. We went back the next day and they had food, and wood was cut for them."

BLAME NEGLECT

Dr. March said all 59 Indians were infected and 13 were in the 18-bed hospital here. He said the Indians had been sick since last November and blamed malnutrition and neglect by the Indian affairs department and Indian health services.

J. W. Boys, British Columbia commissioner for Indian affairs, said Thursday in Vancouver that Mr. Galibois told him he had been to see the Indians a week ago. He said Indian health was not the responsibility of his office, but his agent assured him the Indians had food.

"Naturally we are concerned over the plight of the Indians," he said, "but we believe the claim of malnutrition was grossly over-exaggerated. Mr. Galibois has been with the department for over 25 years and is a respected employee."

SIDEWALK CLEANUP ON WEEKEND ASKED

More rubbish receptacles on Victoria Streets and a change in street sweeping hours are advocated by the downtown merchants' group of Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

At a meeting Thursday afternoon in the chamber board room the group asked city council to make a greater effort in keeping the streets clean over holiday weekends.

The group will ask the chamber to write to banks, brokerage houses and other firms closed on Saturdays requesting them to make arrangements to sweep sidewalks in front of their premises during the weekends.

It was unanimously decided that April 19, the day before Good Friday, should be a 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. shopping day.

Cold Air Eases Threat of Flood

CHICAGO (AP) — Cold air pushed eastward across the U.S. midsection today, dropping temperatures from Texas northeastward to Ohio and slowing runoff from melting snow in flood-plagued Midwest areas.

The snow reached a depth of eight inches Thursday in north-east North Dakota, blocking several roads.

Flood waters appeared to be receding in northeastern Nebraska and the Floyd River in northwest Iowa crested at Sioux City around midnight. An estimated 500,000 sandbags were used to contain the river. About 175 families had been moved to higher ground.

At Cherokee, a northwest Iowa town of about 7,700, water from the Little Sioux River ran four feet deep in parts of the town Thursday night and 25 blocks were inundated. About 75 families were evacuated.

Across Iowa to the east officials in Marshalltown appealed to other communities for volunteers to help sandbag an earthen dike protecting the city of 22,000 from the Iowa River. Up to 300 homes are threatened.

The Cedar River forced about 40 families from their homes at Charles City in northeast Iowa. The community of 9,964 has been placed under a state of emergency.

Called 'CRIMINALS'

Ousted Syrians To Face Trials

DAMASCUS—Syria's top soldier said today a people's court will be set up this weekend to try "criminals of the ousted Syrian regime."

Maj.-Gen. Abdel Karim Zahraddin, commander-in-chief of the army, made this announcement in his first press conference since a military coup Wednesday toppled the right-wing government of President Nazem El Koudsi and Premier Maarouf Dawalibi.

The new government today reopened Syria's borders and re-established communications cut at the time of the coup.

In Beirut, capital of neighboring Lebanon, it was estimated 100 persons, including Dawalibi and three other ex-premiers, were under arrest.

Koudsi, the ousted president, was reported to have been freed after a brief detention. According to one source, he has returned to his native city of Aleppo.

The armed forces command moved quickly Thursday to deny rumors that the new government was drifting back into an alliance with Egypt.

DENY RUMORS

Damascus radio broadcast an announcement calling rumors that Syria was "falling back into the arms" of Egypt "misrepresentations" and said rumor-mongers would be "struck down with an iron hand."

In first reports of the coup Wednesday Damascus radio quoted the army high command as saying the "new movement" would work to achieve pan-Arab unity with Arab "liberated" countries "particularly beloved Egypt and sister Iraq."

Argentina's President Meets Army Demands

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Jose Maria Guido formally assumed the office of president today under the watchful eye and guiding hand of Argentina's military leaders—and amid a few shouts of "viva Frondizi."

The oath-taking ceremony at Government House was the second for the former Senate president.

The military chiefs were not happy that he took the oath before the Supreme Court Thursday without informing them.

For a time it appeared some officers might not recognize the military's own first choice for a constitutional successor to Arturo Frondizi, deposed and flown to a prison island Thursday.

For hours there was uncertainty and the prospect of a new crisis over whether Guido actually would become president of Argentina, ridden by political and economic crisis, even though the military, in a communique, had finally announced that Guido would be installed today.

THE 6 CONDITIONS

Authoritative sources said the three armed service chiefs demanded that the new government, by April 15:

1. Outlaw all organized political activity by Peronist, Communist and pro-Castro forces. The Peronists' sweeping election victories March 18 touched off the crisis that finally brought Frondizi down. The military drove the Peronists underground after it ousted dictator Juan Peron in 1955. It blamed Frondizi for allowing them to run again. Communists, banned for running for office themselves, threw their support to the Peronists March 18.
2. Give the military command a veto over all cabinet appointments.
3. Purge the government ranks of all Peronists, Communists and "frigerist" officials, the latter a reference to Frondizi's intimate adviser, multi-millionaire Rogelio Frigerio.
4. Take over the provincial government in all provinces to completely annul the March 18 election results. Frondizi, at the military's insistence, had ordered such a take over in five provinces where the Peronists had scored victories but allowed Peronist election gains in five other provinces to stand.
5. Give assurance that Frondizi will not be given any function in the government.
6. Abrogate the country's present law covering the status of the nation's labor unions, many of them Peronist. The military has long claimed that laws adopted under Frondizi favored Peronist control of the unions. The military wants the closed shop—compulsory union membership—done away with.

Invaders Beaten Off By Dutch

HOLLANDIA, West New Guinea (AP) — Dutch marines fought a band of well-armed Indonesian invaders in a brief gun battle on the island of Gag, a Dutch military communique said today.

One Indonesian was reported killed and the rest sent fleeing in the skirmish Thursday on the Dutch-held island off the western tip of West New Guinea. The Dutch said they suffered no losses.

The size of the Indonesian force of infiltrators was not disclosed but the Dutch said they captured quantities of ammunition, outdoor motors, gasoline, light machine-guns and American-made rifles.

Gag is in the Radja Ampat Archipelago bordering Indonesian territory. An Indonesian bomber last Sunday bombed a small Dutch patrol boat in the Bay of Gag, wounding three Dutch soldiers.

Nothing to Cheer About

BRITISH COLUMBIA'S LONG-est legislative session in recent years has dragged to its despondent close with a record no one can cheer about.

This will go down in provincial history as the session in which Mr. Bennett desecrated a fundamental human right and a compliant Social Credit majority endorsed his action. On the statute books now is a law which denies access to the courts to individuals or interests which consider themselves injured.

British Columbia, or rather a provincial premier, has made this unhappy contribution to the story of parliament's long struggle to protect the rights of the individual and to advance the cause of legal justice. The opposition parties, which on the last election count represented the larger portion of voting citizens, have been solidly against the action. They reflect, we are convinced, the opinion of most people in this province on the question.

Under these circumstances, it is no wonder that the premier's earlier announcement that he would call an election if obstructed in his power policies was muted and finally abandoned at the close of the sittings.

As they go home to their ridings, the Social Credit members will have embarrassing explanations to make to their constituents—explanations of their rejection of the individual's right to appeal arbitrarily fixed compensation in an expropriation. It is not a felicitous position for a member.

Until the legislature roused itself over this basic issue, the session passed without much excitement. The House approved the biggest budget on provincial record ($1 million a day), with estimated revenue falling somewhat short of estimated expenditure. But the expansion of services indicated by the higher budget represented little more than growth to meet the needs of a larger population.

Victoria College expressed regret that its stated requirements were not matched by provincial funds to finance them. School districts, receiving more dollars, measured the increases also in terms of natural growth, not in more generous treatment from the province.

The familiar complaint against the inadequacy of social services—an inadequacy resulting from restricted funds—was heard again with special reference to afflicted children in the Jericho Hill school.

No substantial progress was reported on the major issue before the people at this time—the development of hydro power from British Columbia rivers. Mr. Bennett held firm to his determination to proceed with both Peace River and Columbia projects. But the international treaty proposed for the Columbia remained unsigned. While Victoria-Ottawa relations appeared slightly less tense in this area, no positive reconciliation had been effected.

On the Peace, vital issues remained to be settled, the method of financing the work and the disposition of power among them. An ironic note at the session's end was the suit instituted against the government by its old friend of the Peace River Power Development days, Mr. W. C. Mainwaring.

The public had a reasonable understanding of the road Mr. Bennett wishes to pursue, but there was still no indication as to how B.C.'s power controversy will end.

Justice or Revenge?

ALMOST A YEAR AFTER THE event, 1,100 prisoners captured in the abortive invasion of Cuba are now being put on trial in a Havana prison.

Earlier Castro "trials" of rebels and suspected rebels were largely a farce. Prisoners faced judges amid a shouting crowd of pro-Castro supporters and the "justice" meted out was on a par with the setting. In many cases death by the firing squad was a foregone conclusion. But there have been many other deaths without even the chance of appearing in public.

The men now standing before the Castro judges are rebels. They threatened the Castro regime with military force—and ill-advised support from the United States—and if reason is the charge, death no doubt will be the sentence.

It will matter little that Castro himself was such a rebel a comparatively short time ago, but had the good fortune to end up in the presidency rather than the prisoner's dock. The Cubans are playing a rough game and the losers cannot expect much mercy from the winners.

It would be easier for the world to accept the trials, however, if there were less secrecy. Justice does not flower well in the semi-darkness of prison dungeons, in locked courts or before judges dependent upon the favor of the reigning regime.

Bishop Hill

TRIBUTES FROM MEN OF various religious persuasions and different walks of life reflect the esteem in which this community held the late Most Rev. James M. Hill, Roman Catholic Bishop of Victoria.

The shock of his sudden passing is softened by the gentle memories he leaves. Bishop Hill represented those qualities of asceticism, kindness and scholarship that so become the office he held.

His was the ability to give sage counsel, to illustrate the meaning of compassion, to provide inspiration and encouragement to those engaged in worthwhile endeavors.

His understanding of humanity and his attractive personality won for him the affection of the people in his diocese and the deep respect and high regard of church leaders in other denominations.

Bishop Hill's were the duties of the good shepherd and he discharged them well.

It's Easier to Label Than Think

FEW RECENT CAMPAIGNS have attracted the public interest won by the Canadian Peace Research Institute. One offshoot of this wide interest has been the attempt by a number of misguided critics to brand CAPRI as a Communist-front organization.

While this reaction belongs more properly in the psychiatric than the political realm, Dr. Norman Alcock took occasion to answer it in a recent address at the University of B.C. The group has suffered not only from its enemies but from its friends, he said.

"The image of CAPRI is often blurred by well-meaning supporters," Dr. Alcock observed. "CAPRI is nothing but an objective, fact-finding agency. It is not a movement."

Water-Wings for the Indian

MR. JOHN SQUIRE, OF AL-berni, has called in the legislature for some bold thinking on the Indian problem in this province and in Canada. He believes that the time is past when a special Indian Act should apply to the natives.

As long as they are sheltered, or controlled, by special legislation not applicable to other citizens, they will be a group apart from other Canadians.

The logic of Mr. Squire's argument is sound. He may not be saying that it is time for the native to sink or swim, like anyone else in the stream of our society. On the other hand, he seems to be pointing out that the Indian Act has a comparable effect to water-wings. Both provide a certain buoyancy for the individual in deep water, but they impede his development into a competent swimmer.

The Indian can, of course, take the plunge into full citizenship by becoming enfranchised. So far that process has not been popular with the native. Conceivably provisions of the Indian Act have been a deterrent.

AFTER THE BALL IS OVER

The Captains and the Kings Depart

By B. A. TOBIN

THE scene is the lounge of a ferry heading for the mainland. A number of members of the legislature are returning to their homes at the close of the session. There is a general air of relaxation after the strain of weeks of law-making and the public debate of grave matters. These are the chosen men who have provided leadership for the province — its economy, its finances, its welfare, its future. As the curtain rises the statesmen are chatting together in a friendly way, political differences for the moment forgotten.

Tobin

First Statesman: Gimme a match, Joe. Thanks.

Second S: Whyncha carry yer own?

First S: Do the same for you some day. How d'you feel about going home?

Second S: Oh, I'll weather it I guess. They have short memories.

Third S: I'm not so sure about that. Some of my farmers come up months afterwards quoting something I've said. Of course I can always wriggle out of it, but it's a little upsetting sometimes.

Fourth S: I was warned about that early in my career, pal. That's why I never say anything. You can go through the reports until you're black in the face and you'll never be able to pin a quote on me.

Fifth S: Say, is that right? Not a single one?

Fourth S: Not a single one. I play it smart. That way I never give any ammunition to anybody who tries to run against me.

Third S: Well, it seems sort of... Fifth S: Don't kid yourself. This fellow knows what he's doing. He comes back year after year, don't he?

Third S: Yes, I have to admit that.

Fifth S: Well, what more do you want? I think I'll adopt that system myself. I've had a lot of trouble one time or another with people quoting me. Remember that time I came right out and said what I thought about the Peace River? I won't do THAT again.

Second S: Yeah. Once without thinking I said something against export power—or was it in favor? Boy, did I get it from the folks at home! Seems they were in favor of it—or was it against?

First S: I had almost the same thing happen to me. Some member asked, "Are we in favor of doing it now?" and I yelled "Yes." It was the only one. Boy was I embarrassed. As a matter of fact they'd changed the topic and I thought he was still talking about something else.

Third S: Well, anyway, I got off a few good ones this session. I sure scored on Waldo once. And remember that time I yelled "Aw nuts"? Bert didn't know what to say next.

Fifth S: I never saw a cabinet minister burn like that time I yelled "Ah shaddap!" That really got him.

First S: The easiest way is just to shout "Liar!" That always curls them up. Of course you have to withdraw it, but the job is done by then.

Fourth S: Just silent contempt is good sometimes. Once I stood up and pointed my finger at a fellow speaking. I never said a word, just stood there. It ruined his speech.

Second S: Well, there's all kinds of ways of being a legislator. And speaking of legislating, just what is all this Peace and Columbia kaffuffle about? I mean, I've heard so much about it I forget what it all adds up to.

First S: Search me. I got lost months ago. But what bugs me is this B.C. Electric thing. What's the real point at issue anyway?

Fifth S: Darned if I really know, to tell you the truth. It got too complicated for me long ago.

Third S: Same here. It's too hard to pay attention in the back benches. But I sure wrecked what his name the other day when I yelled "Baloney!" just as he was getting wound up. He got so mad he couldn't talk.

Fourth S: What was he talking about?

Third S: I don't know.

Second S: Well, I'm gonna get a paper. Have to read a roundup of the session before I get home. Somebody's bound to ask what we been doing.

First S: Guess I'd better, too. It's sure handy. I don't know how some of those reporters keep track of it all.

Fourth S: Aw, they just make it up, the same way we do. Bring me a comic book back from the newsstand, will ya? Exit the statesmen, laughing.

In the Opinion of Our Correspondents

Vote Denied?

In view of the nominating convention fiasco the other night I have been seriously considering whether the Liberal Party is the one to which I wish to belong in the future.

Have you ever been invited somewhere and then refused admission? I was invited to vote at the convention but yet refused a ballot. As an ex-member of the Victoria Young Liberal executive I had hoped to use my franchise, but a black line through my name on the voters' list indicated otherwise. Fortunately I was able to join the College delegation and attend the meeting to which I had been invited. For a party so short of votes this practice seems a little strange.

The first thing on the agenda was to suspend the constitution. Is this a new Liberal interpretation of the due process of law or merely standard Liberal procedure? The constitution was suspended by a vote of those not even eligible to vote; at least not by the "suspendable" constitution. This is indeed strange democracy. Even when Hitler's famous Enabling Law was passed it was done so legally and constitutionally. The chairman of the honorable assembly was a lawyer, yet the suspending of the constitution was recommended by him. This same item has headed the agendas in the past yet nothing has been done to alter the procedure. If this document proves to be such a nuisance why not shoot a flaming arrow into it and say there is no constitution?

In the governments of the Commonwealth, the U.S. and elsewhere there is a concept known as the separation of powers. That is, the legislative, executive and judicial branches are kept as separate and independent as possible. Perhaps the Liberal Party has never heard of the cornerstone of democracy. Is it a generally-accepted policy for a member of the administrative or organizational branch of the party to nominate a candidate? This seems similar to a civil servant, the chief of general staff or a judge taking an active role in party politics. To have a party organizer back a man in an intra-party election seems a policy of questionable merit. A man whose job it is to get people of his persuasion out to vote should not enter into a campaign of this sort.

If seems as though a constitution might after all find a place in the Liberal Party of Victoria.

Having, I hope, provided some food for thought I now become one of those many undecided voters.

J. R. WILSON.

3155 Rutland Rd.
P.S. To say that I am accusing any one of the candidates of packing the meeting is most certainly far from the truth. Yet I cannot help wondering who gained more through these rather undemocratic procedures. The setting of the March 19 deadline for joining the party is a peculiar one. It would be interesting to know where some of the late joiners cast their ballots.

Next time the constitution is going to be suspended why not make the deadline for voting delegates just prior to the announcement of anybody's candidacy?

Why Sacrifice a Park?

I was surprised and disappointed to note the Times' opinion favoring the leasing of an attractive (if a little overgrown) public park on the Gorge waterway for use as a commercial amusement park.

Whilst the type of development seems a good idea, to infer that we must lose a public park to accommodate it is quite wrong. There are other privately-owned areas available.

If we are short-sighted enough to continue this deal I predict that the area will be reduced to little better than a car park with a few trees around and we would have to pay to get in!

Brassieres to Baseballs

I have read with interest the news item "Isolation of Jamaica Retards Its Progress," which appeared in February 8 issue, and while I believe Dr. Lucas certainly has Jamaica's best interest at heart and that her efforts in setting up correspondence courses for teachers and students in our elementary schools will truly be of inestimable value to Jamaica, I believe, however, that your readers should also know that more than 20 per cent of Jamaica's budget is spent on education. Indeed, government has in effect a $5,000,000 educational program, which initiated free secondary schools.

With respect to Dr. Lucas' further comments concerning Jamaica's "few exports," I should like to point out that in addition to the old established banana, cocoa, coffee, coconut, citrus, rum, spices and sugar export business, our industrial drive in setting up new manufacturing enterprises, was responsible in 1961 for bringing in more revenue than any other item. Our manufacturing plants today produce such widely varied articles as brassieres for the United States and baseballs for Canada.

By offering tax concessions to industrial and tourist interests, the island has jumped its exports by seven times that of a decade ago to over 200 million Canadian dollars, as will be seen in the Jamaica Economic Survey Report for the year 1960.

Rethinking the Takeover

The original action of the government of B.C. in taking over the B.C. Electric Company met with my personal approval. It appeared to be a most reasonable method of providing public services at less expense and seemed to fit well with the modern trend of public ownership of utilities.

The manner in which our government went about this takeover was of little real interest to me. I haven't bothered to read the many pamphlets and articles expressing the pros and cons of the takeover because they seemed to be little more than politics in what may be an election year. They were of little interest to me because I felt secure in my knowledge that if anyone had a really justifiable complaint they would have one place where everyone, citizen or alien, would always be sure of finding justice: the court of law.

WASHINGTON:

Formosa Quandary

By JOSEPH ALSOP

PRESIDENT CHIANG KAI-SHEK has been strongly pressing the U.S. government to approve invasion of the Chinese Communist mainland from Formosa this summer or autumn. Gov. Averell Harriman was the last American official to hear Chiang make his case for the hazardous venture he has sworn to undertake before he vanishes from this earthly scene. Several others have heard the same arguments, from Chiang and his representatives, in the months since the thaw in the Kennedy administration's initially icy relations with the Chinese Nationalists.

Yet the visit to Taipei of the experienced Assistant Secretary of State for Far Eastern Affairs marked a sort of turning point, nonetheless. Previously, the American policy-makers could not bring themselves to believe that Chiang Kai-shek was in deadly earnest. Now they are somewhat apprehensively convinced that he means what he says.

The truth of the matter is that, from his own point of view, the Chinese Nationalist leader has a genuine case.

The misery imposed on the countryside by the "great leap forward" and the farm communes has now spread into every department of national life in Communist China. Even the army's rations have been cut to the point of causing numerous cases of malnutrition. Disaffection is certainly widespread.

Communist China, in fact, is not unlike an outwardly imposing barn full of ill-stored, ill-cured hay, in which the flames of spontaneous combustion may quite suddenly leap out.

Chiang's first argument is, that a landing would trigger this spontaneous combustion. No one can be sure he is wrong, moreover. Any standard of revolt, successfully raised anywhere in China, would certainly be dangerous for the regime in Peking.

Chiang's second argument is less convincing. He refused to believe in the reality of the Sino-Soviet split until about a year and a half ago. Yet he now reasons that the bad relations between Peking and Moscow reduce the larger risks of an invasion of the mainland to almost zero.

Two Reactions

The first argument is by no means absolutely rejected in Washington. But the second argument has signally failed to carry conviction.

The larger risks of Chiang's project are in truth incalculable. They would be all the greater if a landing were attempted and met with striking initial success. This is the source of the apprehension here.

The trouble is that a now-or-never, do-or-die mood rather plainly exists in the Formosa government. For the reasons already cited, the Chinese Nationalist leaders are convinced that the chance has come at last, for which they have waited so long. They are also convinced that if they lose this opportunity, Formosa will also lose its historic role and sink into provincial insignificance. It will seem odd to most Westerners that these men seriously believe that Formosa still retains an historic role. But this is the belief of Chiang Kai-shek and the men around him, right or wrong.

They not only hold this belief. They also have a large and well-trained army, including a large component of crack troops. They have an air force much smaller but far more combat-worthy than the Chinese Communist air force, with transport aircraft to air-drop at least a division. And they have enough landing craft to put nearly a division on shore in Fukien province.

Some months ago, Chiang almost certainly considered using these considerable resources to launch a surprise invasion, without asking for the U.S. government's approval. The chance that he may yet do so, though very slim, is enough to cause more than passing qualms.

Here, beyond doubt, is final proof of history's cruel irony. John Foster Dulles' famous, Madison-Avenue-style "unleashing" of Chiang Kai-shek was as phony as a three-dollar bill for a basic reason. Chiang had not the smallest intention, at that time, of even waving a finger at the mainland because the opportunity was not ripe.

If the opportunity had been ripe in those days, however, the unleashing would have been quite safe. The state of the nuclear balance in 1953 made it safe as houses.

But in the present state of the nuclear balance, it is plainly unsafe, and now, ironically, Chiang really wants to be unleashed. Hence he will not be, at any rate unless spontaneous combustion actually occurs in Communist China.

Lawyers Clash on Evidence Of Drug-Taking by Accused

A legal battle over the admissibility of evidence relating to drug-taking was fought out in B.C. Assize Court Thursday during the trial of two men charged with being in possession of stolen goods and house-breaking implements.

Robert George Gibb and Richard Gray are charged with possession of a power drill stolen from the T. Eaton Co., cigarettes stolen from the Oak Bay bathhouse and a screwdriver and rubber gloves alleged to have been used for housebreaking.

David Hummel, defence counsel for Gibb, argued that evidence of drug-taking was not relevant to the case against him.

JURY WITHDRAWS

Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton ordered the 12-man jury to withdraw while Mr. Hummel and Crown prosecutor Lloyd McKenzie argued over admissibility of the drug evidence.

Mr. Justice Wootton later ruled that the jury should hear the evidence.

Detectives Angus Munro and Norman Bath then told of finding Gibb in the kitchen of a cabin at the Craigflower

Auto Court on Oct. 25 last with his left sleeve rolled up and a band around his upper arm.

They said there were needle punctures on Gibb's arm which could have been caused by narcotic drug injections.

Detective Bath said such puncture marks usually remain for months afterwards, but when defence counsel Hummel called Gibb to the witness box and asked him to roll up his sleeve, there was no trace of these marks.

Another legal clash occurred over the evidence of Det. Sgt. Victor Pratley of Oak Bay, police concerning a statement by Donald Gray, brother of Richard Gray, who was found with the two accused men at Craigflower Auto Court when police raided the cabin.

'OFF THE STUFF'

Mr. Justice Wootton ruled the statement was admissible, and Det. Sgt. Pratley quoted Donald Gray as saying:

"I guess we are caught now. I am glad. Now I can get off the stuff."

Gray objected to the admission of this statement.

"I never used dope in my life," he said. "This makes me look like I did."

Mr. Justice Wootton rebuked Gray when he accused him of being "against him" in admitting this evidence.

"These impertinent statements will do you no good," he said. "You are not represented by counsel and we are trying our best to give you a fair trial."

The hearing continued today.

Legislators Talk Too Much—Waldo

Victoria's Socred Waldo Skillings criticized the legislature in its dying minutes Thursday for talking too much.

"The business of this session could have been handled very easily in four or five weeks," he said.

The session lasted nine weeks.

"It was the most repetitious debate on most subjects I've ever heard," he said.

It was his second session as an MLA.

North Vancouver's Gordon Gibson tore a strip of the Victoria member, saying he was "disgusted" at the remarks.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner also took a veiled poke at him.

"Time is not really the subject of criticism because this is what we have to do," he said.

Mr. Gibson said the session should perhaps have taken three months. He said some MLAs devote their full time to the legislature.

DEATH PENALTY WILL REMAIN

LONDON (AP) — Home Secretary R. A. Butler has rejected new demands for the abolition of capital punishment and other changes in the British Homicide Act.

Agitation for the end of capital punishment has been spurred recently by the death sentence given James Hanratty, 25, for murdering a man in a highway kidnapping.

After the trial a London newspaper learned that Hanratty, who had a criminal record as a burglar, had been diagnosed a mental defective in 1952.

He is scheduled to be hanged next Wednesday unless Butler recommends that the Queen grant him clemency.

Skillings Only 'No' Vote As Peace Research Backed

Every member of the legislature except Victoria Socred Waldo Skillings Thursday voted in favor of research for peace.

The House approved a resolution made by Camille Mather (NDP—CCF, Delta).

It said the legislature welcomes sincere efforts by Canadians seeking to establish research into causes of international tension, ways to disarmament, abolition of nuclear tests.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner told the House: "No one can be opposed."

But Mr. Skillings was. He was the only MHA to vote "no."

Other resolutions from the Opposition accepted by the government included:

Consideration of a Hansard; tabling of a previously un-released appendix to the Rosa Report on mental health; tabling of detailed correspondence between the government and the Pacific Northern Railway companies.

Defeated was a move to have the Crippen-Wright report on the Columbia River power project tabled.

Most of the other resolutions piled up on the order paper at the last sitting of the House were ruled out of order because they involved spending of taxpayers' money or government policy.

Leo Nimick (NDP—CCF, Cranbrook) protested: "It's a terrible thing that all these resolutions are massaced on the last day. If we'd known a few days ago we could have changed the wording. It's disgraceful."

Important Announcement from Super-Valu

Owing to the recent amendment to the Provincial "Trading Stamp Act" . . . Super-Valu Stores are compelled to discontinue their "Blue Chip" Stamp Plan!

This we do with much regret, since a tremendous number of shoppers were taking advantage of the features offered by our Stamp Plan.

As of Saturday night, March 31st, no further Blue Chip Stamps will be issued.

We will however, continue to redeem any and all stamps we have issued regardless of how few.

Please arrange to return any stamps you may have for redemption to the Super-Valu Store from which they were issued by Saturday night, May 19th.

Hot Sessions Planned For Mainland Firemen

TIME OUT! JEFF KEATE

"Gosh, I'm glad you're here, dear! Somebody's got to call the plumber!"

Two Victoria soccer squads are planning to make things as hot as possible Saturday for some of Vancouver firefighting footballers.

Victoria United steps into Vancouver's Callister Park with full intention of erasing a "home" label. Closer to home at Royal Athletic Park—Gorge Hotel hopes to take another step along the Province Cup trail.

It's an important Saturday for both Gorge and United. And opposition will be supplied by Vancouver Firemen's Athletic Association.

Firefighters' Mainland League, Third Division side, which includes a number of former Pacific Coast League performers, meets Gorge in a match that sends the winners into the quarter-finals of the knockout event designed to seek out B.C.'s best club.

Trio Dominates Grand National

LONDON (CP)—An equine "big three" dominates this year's renewal of the famed Grand National steeplechase Saturday.

They are the topweighted Merryman II, winner of the race in 1960; Nicholas Silver, and the promising Frenchman's Cove, making his first try in a National.

Of the trio, Frenchman's Cove is the most intriguing. He is owned by Stanhope Joel, member of a famous racing family and made a fortune out of South African diamonds, and he clears fences with an elegant ease that makes ordinary steeplechasers look clumsy.

Frenchman's Cove is a seven-year-old chestnut gelding by Airborne, surprise winner of the Epsom Derby in 1946, out of Frenchman's Creek.

Merryman, an 11-year-old bay gelding by Carnival Boy out of Maid Marian, hasn't won this season but Yorkshire rainer Neville Crump, a specialist at producing National winners, says his horse is just reaching peak form.

Nicholas Silver will carry only 159 pounds, 12 less than Merryman. A 10-year-old grey gelding by Nicolaus out of Rays of Montrose, he always runs his best races at Aintree.

Sleet and rain have churned the Aintree circuit into a perilously soft course that could take a heavy toll of the runners.

Thirty-three horses are scheduled to charge off over a four-mile, 856-yard distance. Unless the ground hardens before then, a small percentage of these are expected to complete the grueling course.

Favorite after Thursday night's call-over was Nicholas Silver at 13-2, with Frenchman's Cove at 7-1, Merryman at 17-2 and Springbok at 14-1.

But some course pundits said the holding turf seemed to give a mudlark like Springbok better chances to clip the prospects of Nicholas Silver who, while he doesn't object to the soft patches, prefers firm ground.

Navy Curling Championship To Emberton

OTTAWA (CP)—Trevor Emberton of Victoria Thursday night skipped his rink to a 9-5 victory over Bob Salmon's Ottawa rink to win the Royal Canadian Navy bonspiel.

"And, b.y., did they play a terrific game," said Salmon.

The victory followed Emberton's extra-end victory over last year's winner, Ottawa's Dick Ross, who dropped an 8-7 verdict.

The only other Victoria rink, skipped by Wes Young, lost out in the semi-finals, 9-5, to Salmon.

The second event of the sixth annual bonspiel, for the Ross Trophy, was won by Norm Denny of Ottawa who defeated Bill Onysko of Washington, D.C. The McGillivray Trophy, next on the list, went to Derrick Carey, who defeated E. Lavalley. Both are from Ottawa.

The Wright Trophy, final competition in the bonspiel, was won by Peter Salsicelli of Ottawa who defeated Bert Levy of Halifax.

Credit government got into a political bicker about anti-Americanism.

But still, the session remained relatively quiet, and certainly dull.

It wasn't until Premier Bennett started a whirlwind of election speculation and introduced his power legislation in March that things sizzled.

These were the highlights:

● Announcement of substantial electric light bill cuts and the power merger in the Throne Speech;

● Death Jan. 31 of Revelstoke NDP-CCF member George Hobbs from a heart attack;

● A final Opposition fling at Frank McMahon, the oil magnate they accused of dipping into the gravy of government concession;

● A record $356,141,348 budget, spectacular more for its size than its new proposals;

● The big power debate set against the background of court order placing B.C. Electric under a receiver.

Personalities played a big part in the last few weeks of the session, too.

Oak Bay Liberal Alan Macfarlane demonstrated his speciality—needling the premier into a fury, and also nearly got thrown out of the House twice, once in a shouting match with Victoria's Sacred Waldo Skilings.

CAMILLE CRIED

Comox's Sacred Dan Campbell three times had the Opposition in a fury—when he was accused of calling them "godless," when he helped make Camille Mather cry and when he read letters, attacking Dave Barrett, Dewdney MLA, which he claimed were written by delinquent girls.

On the other hand, Mr. Macfarlane contributed the "hard-hitting" speech of the session when he attacked the government's power legislation, and said it left the public with a choice of "justice or Bennett."

And Mrs. Mather, NDP-CCF member for Delta, won with her tears some of the improvements she was seeking to Jericho Hill School for deaf children.

LONGEST SINCE 1920

It was the longest session since 1920.

Power was the dominant theme.

The session started with opposition attacks on Premier Bennett's two-river policy—Peace and Columbia development—and was interrupted by the premier's trips to Ottawa and Vancouver for federal-provincial talks on the Columbia.

The legislation provoked two days of hard debate on human rights, although the government maintained that by altering the takeover legislation it was only protecting the people from increased light bills.

In fact, the premier said Monday, a cut in light bills was planned in the second week of April within 15 days.

Catholics Plan Meet On Labor

Roman Catholics of B.C. and Alberta will hold a conference on labor-management industrial relations in Victoria Sept. 14-16.

Some 500 delegates from both sides of the Rockies and from as far north as the Yukon are expected to attend.

The conference will examine the recent encyclical of Pope John 23, "Mater et Magistra," in which the moral responsibilities of labor and management to each other, to the society and to the state are laid out.

Prominent labor spokesmen from various parts of Canada are expected to attend, but the schedule of speakers has not yet been worked out.

Theme of the conference will be "Christianity and the Social Program."

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan summed up the power debate in a brief speech on the bill of supply which Thursday afternoon gave the government authority to spend its budget.

'BLUNDERING'

"This time we tried to legalize the blundering the government through certain legislation," he said.

Effect of this legislation, and the merger, on court actions pending, development of the Peace River project and rate cuts is uncertain.

However, the government appears confident it will sweep aside all obstacles.

Other new legislation of importance included a move which should effectively ban trading stamps in B.C.

It prohibits use of stamps worth less than 10 cents in redeemable value for premiums, and followed a long series of special committee public hearings.

Two pieces of legislation affecting taxes were passed: a reduction of the amusement tax from 10 to 5 per cent and exemption from the 5 per cent sales tax of school textbooks.

'NEW LOOK'

There was also legislation backing up a broad "new look" in vocational and technical education which includes a massive building program with federal aid of new vocational schools and additions to existing secondary schools.

The legislature received what may become an annual visit from B.C.'s unemployed—500 of them came marching down Government Street Feb. 21, and caused a ruckus in the public galleries by jeering the premier.

Last touch of fire in the session came Thursday afternoon when the opposition renewed attacks on oil magnate Frank McMahon.

But after speedily disposing of a number of private bills and resolutions, it moved once more to a peaceful mood of goodwill when Lieutenant-Governor Peakes performed the prorogation ceremony.

LIVE HERE

Mr. Heaney said he has "no future plans yet." He and his wife will continue living in Victoria. They have two daughters, one married and the other engaged.

Mr. and Mrs. Nordal, who bought the 53-year-old C&C company, operate the Embassy Motor Court and the Redwood Park Motel. The purchase includes all rolling stock and several properties.

Present staff of 75 will be retained and probably expanded, Mrs. Nordal said. A son, attending a Scottish university now, will become president of the transportation firm when he returns in May.

Purchase was made from the estate of Cecil Rhodes and Cecil Rawlings who were killed in 1960 when their plane crashed near Nitinat Lake during a fishing trip. It originally was known as Cameron & Caldwell.

The Heaney firm was founded by Joseph Heaney in 1890 with horse team and wagon. He also ran a pack train of horses over the mountain trails to Dawson City to supply gold rush miners with tea, spices and food.

"I remember helping out as a youngster after school," said Bill Heaney. "We had 25 wagons and 50 horses and three stables in 1912."

The firm bought its first truck—a two-ton solid tire Day Elder—about the end of the First World War. Joseph Heaney died in 1921 and for the next eight years the firm was operated by his brother George until his death.

In 1930, William returned from California and took over the firm.

TOUGH TIMES

"I was 30, we had five trucks and a rented storage warehouse and the depression was on. Things were tough everywhere and several times I thought of going back to California," he recalled today.

"Bert McKenzie and myself were the total office and warehouse staff at the start. There was no particular milestone in our growth. It was just steady work."

The firm now operates a daily freight service from Victoria to Vancouver and Campbell River.

It owns a terminal building in Vancouver where it lays over the big semi-trailer units that shuttle between Victoria and Vancouver.

In Victoria, it has substantial property holdings at 521 Bastion, 1215 Wharf, 25 Montreal, and on Douglas near the Roundabout and at Kelvin.

He noted Mr. Macmillan said he might have something further to say in a week or two. The matter of a date was a difficulty since Canada and other Commonwealth members were approaching general elections. This had to be considered before a date was set.

He said he was sure the public agrees MLAs are underpaid.

He called on the government to consider a raise next year.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner promised consideration.

'Sue the Crown' Bill Grounded

A private bill to enable individuals to sue the Crown died with four others on the floor of the legislature Thursday.

Final consideration of the six private bills was one of the last acts of the legislature in the session ended Thursday night.

Three were defeated in voting, two were ruled out of order and the sixth—only one introduced by a government member—was passed.

The act to enable proceedings against the Crown was brought to the floor by Oak Bay Liberal Alan Macfarlane, who noted that B.C. is one of the few remaining areas of Canada where there is an "iniquitous" situation requiring consent to sue the Crown.

Speaker Hugh Shantz ruled the bill out of order because it requires consent of the Crown to be brought, Attorney-General Robert Bonner withheld consent.

Mr. Macfarlane challenged the Speaker's ruling, which was upheld 29-19.

Also lost was a bill to amend the Labor Relations Act, introduced by Alex Macdonald (NDP-CCF—Vancouver East), which would require companies to adhere to the same restriction as labor unions in the matter of political contributions.

Unions may not contribute funds from membership dues to a political party.

'ACID TEST'

"We want even-handed justice between trade unions and corporations," Mr. Macdonald said. "The government can't turn it down. Here's an acid test of the political honesty of this government."

The bill was lost, again 29-19, with Liberals voting with the official Opposition.

Another bill presented by Mr. Macdonald, which would have amended the Provincial Elections Act and limit campaign expenses, was rejected on a voice vote.

Liberal leader Ray Perrault's bill respecting the Power Development Act was ruled out of order, and a bill to amend Bate (SC—Vancouver Point the Equal Pay Act, by Mrs. Grey).

Approval was given to an act incorporating the Lutheran Student Foundation of British Columbia, introduced by Tom of order, and a bill to amend Bate (SC—Vancouver Point the Equal Pay Act, by Mrs. Grey).

'WICKS' JOB HANDED TO HIM ON PLATTER

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan Thursday again attacked the Social Credit government for "deliberate" patronage in appointing a former cabinet minister to the B.C. Public Utilities Commission.

He was speaking about Lyle Wicks, former labor minister, defeated in the last provincial election and then given the PUC job at $12,000 a year.

"The job was handed to him on a platter after it was deliberately created for him knowing full well he was going to be defeated," said Mr. Strachan.

His comments, unanswered by the government, were made when the legislature approved $376,150 estimates for the PUC.

The Master Touch

You can tell a master of the game by the way he performs when the heat's on. "So-so" players wilt under pressure.

Same with tires. When the heat's on during hours of high-speed driving, Low Profile Dominion Royal Masters run cooler... last longer because they flex to a lesser degree.

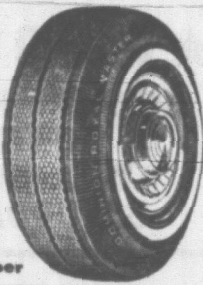

You enjoy greater stability, easier steering. Premium quality Dominion Royal Masters give you premium mileage, traction and braking power. And elegant styling gives your car a "Gran Turismo" flair.

If your business or pleasure calls for extra long mileage or if you just want the safest, best looking tire you can buy—don't settle for less... give your car the "master touch"... buy

Cuban Blockade Reveals Cracks

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States government says it has blocked attempts to transship some $500,000,000 worth of embargoed goods to Cuba but despite a doubling of surveillance, some American goods slipping through the curbs.

A 10-DAY jail term was handed out to Mrs. Florence Aadland, 54, mother of the late Errol Flynn's teen-age girl friend Beverly Aadland, for "intemperate" language about the Los Angeles court which placed her on three-year's probation for contributing to the delinquency of her daughter. Judge Lewis Drucker said that after she serves the sentence he will grant her request to go to New York to look for work.

A total of 1,891,437 Canadians have received one or more free blood transfusions since the Canadian Red Cross Service was established in 1947.

Assistant Commerce Secretary Jack N. Behrman has informed the Senate internal security subcommittee that despite a tightened policing "some goods are going through, not necessarily from Canada, but from some of the Latin-American countries. We are watching this very carefully."

Behrman's testimony, with extensive references to Canada's co-operation in prevention of backdoor circumvention of the embargo, was delivered before the committee last fall and made public today together with a committee statement criticizing Western trade with the Communist bloc.

Senator James Eastland, Miss issippi Democrat and subcommittee chairman, said that despite tightened American export controls, the Communists still are acquiring materials from the U.S. useful to their military and industrial build-up.

SEES 'SERIOUS FLAWS'

Senator Kenneth Keating, New York Republican, said the hearings indicate "serious flaws" in U.S. and NATO policy in trade with the Sino-Soviet bloc.

During the hearing, the transcript shows, Keating brought to Behrman's attention a letter from a "reputable forwarding company" which said that up to Dec. 15, 1960, the Cuban government had a representative in New York "who operated under a fictitious name."

'Bulldozing' Tactics Denied

Charges that the government was trying to foist community planning on the Colwood-Glen Lake area were sharply denied Thursday.

"It resulted entirely from a decision made by the property owners themselves," said Mrs. Elsie Shepherd, chairman of the Community Planning Association of Canada here.

"Almost 200 persons attended our conference at Belmont High School last November and unanimously adopted a motion from the floor asking the government to establish a community planning area," she said.

"We sent out notices of the meeting to 3,486 households from Langford to Metchosis and we did that twice. We also advertised the meeting in the Victoria papers and the local Highway Review.

"It's ridiculous for anyone to say they were taken by surprise."

She was referring to a stormy meeting Wednesday at which some 300 residents heckled MLA Herbert Bruch and claimed the government was trying secretly to make the unorganized area into a municipality.

$15,000 DEPOSIT LOST

PNR Is Dead ... Just About

By AB KENT
Pacific Northern Railway promoters have lost their $15,000 deposit, but the government is still hopeful the railway will proceed, Transport Minister Earle Westwood said Thursday.

He was replying in the dying moments of the 1962 legislative session to Opposition charges that the government is "fooling the people," and "bluffing northern residents."

The proposed railway to the Yukon is "part of the Wenner-Gren deal for northern development that the government blew into a great bubble and sold to the people of B.C.," it was charged.

Mr. Westwood said the company had spent $1,500,000 on surveys in the area.

"They wouldn't have spent the money unless they intended to do it," he said.

"We have been anxious to see this railway built," the minister said.

"We can close the door on them. They have nothing. We gave them nothing. Do you want to see the railroad go to the Yukon border?" he asked.

He asked whether the government should encourage creation of jobs and open the vast natural resources of the north, "or do we want to cancel their certificate and throw them out?"

"If another company wants to do it, fine. We'll consider it."

Then he asked if the Opposition had any constructive ideas.

"Stop fooling the people," members across the floor shouted.

Mr. Westwood lost some of his reserve.

"I'm not fooling the people," he cried. "I never have in this House and I never will."

Firm Must Reapply to Go Ahead

"Have you a firm undertaking this company, or have you not?" Randolph Harding (NDP-CCF—Kaslo-Slocan) asked.

Mr. Westwood read detailed correspondence from last summer relating to alternative deadlines for construction. The company chose to proceed by clearing land for the first 100 miles of right of way, accepting the condition that the performance bond would be cancelled without provision for extension, unless the work was started by Nov. 1, 1961.

He said the company would have to reapply for a certificate to proceed.

"It is in the best interests of the people of B.C. if the project goes ahead."

William Murray (SC—Prince Rupert) said the injunction imposed by the city of Prince Rupert to hold up the project "is being used by the company as a crutch and excuse."

"To all intents and purposes, this certificate is cancelled now... We can throw the possible development of this railway out the window if that's what you want," the minister said.

"I can't see any advantage to the people of British Columbia in cancellation," he added.

Mr. Harding said he objected to promises and hopes held out to the people when there is no hope of proceeding.

"It is no use trying to leave in the minds of the people hope of construction of a railway to the Yukon border... if you can see a gang of promoters is going to drop it because they see they can't make any money out of it."

"If the company intended to build this railway, which quite frankly I am against, they would have done it long ago," the member said.

(Prince Rupert—and Mr. Murray—object to the proposed route of the railway, believing that it should take a shortcut to the seaboard via Prince Rupert.)

Mr. Harding accused the government of "juggling" in the deal.

"We stand there with cap in hand begging the promoters to do the job, and they have no more intention of doing it than flying."

"They delayed, they delayed, they delayed. They made the minister and the government

CITY BRIEFS

A meeting of the Old Age Pensioners' Organization Branch No. 5, will be held in the Naval Veterans' Hall, Broad Street, next Wednesday at 1:30 p.m.

David Brown was installed president of the Pacific Meridian Chapter of Toastmasters International on Wednesday night. Outgoing president Ken Darley relinquished the gavel to the new president during a banquet at the Colonial Inn.

The Photographers' Dark-room Club will meet Monday at 8 p.m. in the Strathcona Hotel. Those interested are requested to bring their own spotone, brush, soft pencils, etching knife, and prints to spot. Jack Muir will present a practical lecture and demonstration on spotting and mounting.

Painting of City Hall's exterior walls should be completed by Wednesday if fine weather holds out, city planning and inspection head Rod Clack said today.

Plant Closed Down

EAST HAMPTON, Mass. (AP)—Immediate liquidation of Hampton Mills, employing 300 textile workers, was announced in bulletin board notices. The company is a subsidiary of J. P. Stevens Company of New York and the decision to end the 60-year operation apparently came as a surprise not only to employees, but to local officials.

WALTER RYAN ... denies abduction

Defrocked Priest Will Pay

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A former Roman Catholic priest agreed Thursday to pay $100 a month for the support of his three daughters after his wife returns religious duties and vestments.

Domestic relations court accepted the offer made by defrocked priest Walter A. Ryan, 56.

Ryan also offered to allow his wife to sell property at Fort Salonga, N.Y., which he valued at $18,000, the money to be held for his daughters.

Under questioning of Superior Court Judge Joseph Karesch, Ryan denied that he was ever abducted by the Catholic church or was held in a monastery at any time after leaving his wife in 1955 as she charged in a $230,000 suit against the church.

Cigarette-Cancer Link Proven Claims Surgeon

ABOARD EMPRESS OF ENGLAND (CP)—Cigarette smoking is an important factor in the cause of lung cancer and doctors should urge young people not to form the habit, a leading Toronto surgeon said today.

"There is no shadow of doubt that certain people are susceptible and that the smoking of cigarettes is the important stimulating factor in the development of cancer," Dr. F.G. Kergin, professor of surgery at the University of Toronto, said in a paper presented to the sixth assembly of the College of General Practitioners of Canada.

"Putting it the other way, I am quite satisfied that if no one smoked cigarettes, there would be much less lung cancer."

Dr. Kergin noted that many of the doctors at the meeting, including himself, are habitual smokers.

"Perhaps in those of us who are middle-aged or more, it does not matter too much. We should, however, use all the influence of which we are capable to dissuade young people from taking up this habit."

Lung cancer has become by a wide margin the most important cause of death from cancer in male patients in Ontario in 1959. One out of five cancer deaths among male patients was from lung cancer. In that year, $26 men and 118 women died of lung cancer in Ontario.

Dr. Kergin said he reviewed case histories of 100 consecutive patients where he is surgeon-in-chief. Dr. Kergin said the death rate of patients all of whom were proved to have lung cancer, per cent and "that of the patients with whom we are able to do a resection with hope of cure, a quarter will be alive and apparently free of disease from lung cancer surgery is six in five years."

House Locks Horns Over McMahon Profits

The government and opposition deadlocked on the last bitter issue of the legislative session: whether or not oil magnate Frank McMahon made huge profits at public expense.

The Opposition, led by Alex Macdonald (NDP-CCF—Vancouver East) said McMahon's companies made $11,000,000 "free" and $6,500,000 by underpricing shares of the new crude oil pipeline from the Peace River country to the coast.

The government, led by Attorney-General Robert Bonner, said it wasn't true, that stock transactions involved were perfectly legal, that they hadn't affected the price of the product and that Mr. McMahon had only a "very minor interest" in the major company involved.

The minister responsible for pipelines, Transport Minister Earle Westwood, under whose estimates the debate flared, didn't say anything.

But another cabinet minister, Ray Williston, in charge of lands, made a startling confession: he was to blame for the whole mess.

Crux of the argument was transfer of a right-of-way for the new pipeline from West-coast Transmission Co., of which Mr. McMahon is president, to Western Pacific Products, a new company set up by his interests.

Mr. Macdonald said that the transfer was made for 750,000 shares in Western Pacific. These shares, issued at $5 each, now trade on the stock market at $15. But Westcoast paid nothing for them.

In addition another McMahon company, Westcoast Production Co., bought the other 825,000 Western shares at $5, issued 170,000 to the public and retained the rest, now worth $6,500,000.

"It's like printing money," said Mr. Macdonald.

He castigated Mr. Westwood. "The minister has failed miserably to protect the public interest," he said.

Apart from the McMahon "profit" the worst thing was that so few Western shares were offered to the public at all.

Mines Minister Kenneth Kiernan said the transaction had no effect on the price paid by consumers for the crude oil products.

Nor did the stock market price of the shares.

"It is a story founded primarily on fiction," he said.

Mr. Bonner said Westcoast and Western were entirely separate "persons" as far as the law was concerned.

Mr. Williston said he created the whole problem because he insisted the particular right of way involved should be used. This was to protect the interests of the people. Land in the area which could be used for a pipeline was very limited, and the government didn't want to use up any more by a new right of way.

'Princess Day' All Set June 16

By IAIN HUNTER

Over 1,000 members of the "regimental family" of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's) will celebrate a "regimental day" with their colonel-in-chief

PRINCESS MARY colonel-in-chief

Courtenay. The parade in Mac Donald Park will be under the command of Capt. Angus Davie.

The main parade for the presentation of colors will be held in the afternoon at Beacon Hill Park.

Under the command of Lt. Col. Peter Ramsay, 300 troops of four guards, the pipes and drums and a regular army band, will troop the old colors for the last time before the colonel-in-chief.

The new colors to be presented by Princess Mary, will be consecrated by the Protestant director of chaplain services from Ottawa, Col. T. A. Brown.

DINNER

In the evening, a regimental dinner for veterans of both world wars and serving officers of the regiment will be held on the main floor of the Bay Street Armory.

Some 600 members of the regimental family are expected to sit down to dinner with their colonel-in-chief.

Col. Ramsay, present commanding officer of the unit, said the regiment has been planning for the event for a long time.

"This is the most important peacetime event ever held by the Canadian Scottish," he said.

FIVE COMPANIES

"Since January the presentation of colors has been the focal point of all training in the unit. The ceremony is difficult enough for a unit in the regular army which can devote its full time preparing for it. It is even more so for a militia unit, particularly when it is detached in five localities as ours is," he added.

The regiment has companies in Victoria, Duncan, Alberni, Courtenay and Nanaimo.

SINGLE BARRACKS

A concentration already has been held in Nanaimo this February, one of the few times the regiment has been able to get together as a unit. Two more on-Island concentrations are scheduled for April 8 and May 6.

Immediately before the ceremony, the regiment as a whole will move into a single barracks in Victoria for a week.

This will be the second visit of the Princess Royal to the Canadian Regiment and Victoria. She was here last in 1955.

Campus Field Solution To 'Rhubarb'

Solution to a conflict of dates at Royal Athletic Park this summer may come from establishment of a baseball diamond at the Gordon Head Campus.

Hugh Farquhar, administrative official at Victoria College, said today that the college would "do everything it can to co-operate in helping out the city."

Under study is a compromise plan in which the city, and possibly surrounding municipalities, would spend up to $2,500 in erecting a backstop and bleachers on one of the campus fields for temporary use of the Victoria senior baseball league.

The league's officials recently protested that the historical pageant and other centennial events scheduled for Royal Athletic Park would force cancellation of the four-team schedule and end senior baseball here.

Proposed solution would: enable the league to play at Gordon Head when Royal Athletic is tied up this summer; save the city several thousands of dollars that would have been spent in providing a rough diamond at Topaz Park; provide the campus with a hardball diamond.

TRAFFIC FINES

In city police court today: Robert West, 1249 Burnside, over 30 mph, $20.

Clifford Chudy, Brentwood, over 30 mph, $20 and licence suspended.

Gordon Pedersen, Central Saanich, no signal, $15.

Lee Sam, 1316 Bay, Careless driving, $35.

Marric Pavlic, 338 Niagara, no current driver's licence, $25.

Ghaz Underwood, 5172 West Saanich Road, no current driver's licence, $15.

Bomb Scare Judgment Reserved

Judgment was reserved until Monday in city police court today for a man accused of instituting a bomb scare at Patricia Bay Airport March 17.

Application for dismissal of the charge was turned down by the magistrate.

Harold Thomson, 1214 Yates Street, is charged with giving information he knew to be false with intent to cause injury or alarm.

Defence lawyer James Proudfoot argued the prosecution had proved neither intent nor knowledge the information was false.

"I think this is a case to be met," said Magistrate William Ostler.

KEPT IN JAIL

He regretted the defendant would have to be kept in jail until Monday but he said he needed time for his judgment.

Five witnesses were called to the stand by prosecutor Angus Smith.

Dorothy Sparshatt, 2217 Quadra, said she received a call from the defendant at 4:55 p.m. March 17 warning her there was a bomb on a TCA plane.

"He told me someone had called him and told him so. He said he did not have a reservation on any flight."

GAVE NAME

Miss Sparshatt said Thomson gave her his name and telephone number.

Robert Kolb, 902 Government, district sales manager of TCA, called the RCMP when he was informed of the call.

"I went to the Yates Street address of Thomson after Mr. Kolb phoned us," said Cpl. Reginald Blackmore, RCMP.

Cpl. Blackmore said Thomson admitted making the call but did not tell him someone had called him first.

Thomson evidently feared someone was trying to kill him for his insurance, the corporal said.

DRINKING

"It was obvious to me Thomson had been drinking before I went to his place," Blackmore said.

He described Thomson's condition as "impaired, not drunk."

ASK The TIMES

Q. What is the origin of the word "margarine"? M. F. R.

A. The word comes from the Greek word used in reference to the pearly lustre of crystals or scales. It was adopted in chemistry as Margarine, the name of one of these fatty acids; derivatives of which were thought to form the chief constituents of animal fats. Margarine, now used to describe any substitute of butter made from Oleomargarine, the liquid substance extracted from beef fat under pressure and allowed to solidify, is a misapplication of the chemical term.

Q. We wish to design a float for the May 24 parade here in Victoria. Could you please tell us what length the longest float in the world was? O.P.

A. The Chinese community in Saigon paraded a 1,375-foot dragon to commemorate the first anniversary of the South Vietnam police force in May, 1956.

Victoria section of the association provided the marker on the grave of Thomas Harris, first mayor of Victoria, and restoration of the Bishop Hills grave has been done by the Anglican Synod.

The work has pointed up noteworthy facts which are carefully recorded in history, but often forgotten.

For instance, a reading of the inscriptions on the Sir Richard McBride grave shows that he apparently was only 33 years of age when he assumed the premiership, and actually he was 32!

In an age which places emphasis on youth, and tends to deprecate the achievements of its forebears, that particular record comes as a bit of a shock.

It should be pointed out that in the picture of the McBride stones, the dates "1870-1937" apply to Lady McBride. Sir Richard, worn by stress of politics, economic difficulties of the time, and war worries, died in 1917.

A discrepancy turned up on the headstone of Hon. A. E. B. Davie. His age is given as 42 years, while the correct age at death, carefully researched and inscribed on the historical association plaque, indicates he was only 41.

$3 Million Subsidy for Toll Service

The B.C. government will pay a subsidy of $2,939,942 for the last year's operations of its Toll Bridges and Highways Authority.

A cabinet order established the figure today.

All toll projects are self-liquidating according to Premier Bennett, but the government contributes an annual operating subsidy of 2 1/2 per cent of their indebtedness.

New debt figures for the nine Toll Authority operations were calculated as the basis of the past year's subsidy.

$117 MILLION DEBT

Total debt for roads, bridges and ferries is $117,597,709.

The ferry system—Swartz Bay—Tsawwassen, Nanaimo—Horseshoe Bay, Gulf Islands and Sechart services—owes $26,968,736.

Biggest debt is $29,218,435 for the Deas Island Tunnel.

The Second Narrows Bridge in Vancouver owes $24,206,268.

First Narrows is down to $6,054,053.

The Toll Authority also operates the Agassiz-Rosedale, Nelson, Okanagan Lake and Oak Street bridges, and the Oak St-Deas Island Highway on the lower mainland.

Vic College Project Gets Ottawa Grant

A grant of $7,750 has been awarded by the Defence Research Board to assist in a research project of a member of the Victoria College physics department, it was announced today.

He is Dr. David Rankin, who initiated the project with Prof. Harry Dossio, also a member of the college physics staff.

The two men will work together on the project, a study of the magneto-telluric effect, which will add to the understanding of the earth's magnetic field and of the earth's geological structure.

Models will be used, and the project will be housed in one of the huts at the Gordon Head campus. It will be moved into the new science building when the latter is available.

Dr. John L. Climenhaga, head of the department, said the grant is the first to be made to the department.

"Research will play an increasing part in our program here," he said. "We are getting under way on a number of projects, and are looking forward to starting more."

Requiem Mass Tuesday For Prelate

Solemn Pontifical Requiem Mass will be held Tuesday at 11 a.m. in St. Andrew's Cathedral for the Most Reverend James Hill, Bishop of Victoria, who died Thursday.

Presiding at the service will be Archbishop Sebastiano Baggio, apostolic delegate to Canada who will arrive from Ottawa by air Monday.

Also scheduled to participate are Archbishop W. M. Duke of Vancouver and Most Rev. Martin Johnson, Coadjutor Archbishop of Vancouver.

The body will lie in state from 1:30 p.m. Sunday in the Cathedral. Arrangements are in the hands of McCall Brothers.

J. E. BOSHER international fame

'Father' of B.C. Bulb Industry Retires Here

The man who is known to farmers as the "father of the bulb industry in British Columbia" retired today as plant pathologist at the Dominion Experimental Farm, Saanichton.

He is J. E. Boshier, who achieved international recognition for his work in plant pathology dealing with the attacks of the parasitic roundworm, otherwise known as nematodes, on plants.

Farmers claim it was due to Mr. Boshier's guidance that the B.C. bulb industry grew from nothing to become an important part of the agricultural economy of Vancouver Island and the lower mainland.

But he carried out equally as important research work on ornamental plants.

Born in England, Mr. Boshier came to Canada in 1919 as a youth. He joined the federal plant pathology laboratory at Saanichton in 1930 where he began devising methods of controlling various types of plant diseases.

"A" group of the junior branch of the Victoria Natural History Society will meet on Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at the Monterey parking lot for a field trip to Logan Park on Viaduct Avenue off Interurban Road.

Greater Victoria Association for the retarded will hold a meeting for election of officers on Tuesday, April 10, at 8 p.m. at 1450 Elford Street.

Dale Carnegie Alumni Association will hold a meeting on Monday at 8 p.m. in the Woodsworth Hall, 721 Courtney Street.

The Color Photographic Association of Canada will meet at 322 Plasket Place on Monday at 8 p.m. Mrs. Mary Collett will give instruction on the use of the camera.

The annual meeting of the Community Welfare Council of Greater Victoria will be held April 11 at 8 p.m. in the auditorium of St. John Ambulance Headquarters, 941 Pandora Avenue. J. M. Anguish, executive director, will speak on "The Role of a Community Welfare Council."

Winners of the spring party tournament conducted by the Victoria Allstars' Duplicate Bridge Club were: Phil Hagel, Otto Leemant, Paul Smith and Jim Duprau.

Olson Motors, Cook and Yates Streets, reported thefts from two cars on their lot Wednesday night.

The accessories missing were not noticed until Thursday noon.

Stolen from a 1954 Ford were a radiator, windshield, radiator hose, custom radio, headlight and two headlight rims.

A tire and rim were also removed from a 1962 Zephyr. Total value of the parts taken exceeded $250.

Historical Association which has placed special markers on the graves of five former premiers.

In these cases there was no mention on their headstones of their former positions. The special stones, of a standard form, can be seen here as listing the accomplishments of the leaders concerned.

This particular project was carried out by the association with a $1,000 grant provided by the provincial government for the purpose.

Graves of former lieutenant-governors will be marked by the society, while other special groups will undertake restoration and special marking projects.

For instance, the Woman's Institutes of Craigflower and Lake Hill are responsible for the restoration and marking at the grave of Kenneth MacKenzie, first knight of Craigflower Farm.

Victoria section of the association provided the marker on the grave of Thomas Harris, first mayor of Victoria, and restoration of the Bishop Hills grave has been done by the Anglican Synod.

The work has pointed up noteworthy facts which are carefully recorded in history, but often forgotten.

For instance, a reading of the inscriptions on the Sir Richard McBride grave shows that he apparently was only 33 years of age when he assumed the premiership, and actually he was 32!

In an age which places emphasis on youth, and tends to deprecate the achievements of its forebears, that particular record comes as a bit of a shock.

It should be pointed out that in the picture of the McBride stones, the dates "1870-1937" apply to Lady McBride. Sir Richard, worn by stress of politics, economic difficulties of the time, and war worries, died in 1917.

A discrepancy turned up on the headstone of Hon. A. E. B. Davie. His age is given as 42 years, while the correct age at death, carefully researched and inscribed on the historical association plaque, indicates he was only 41.

VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, MARCH 30, 1962—PAGE 17

MONTE ROBERTS

The current and laudable efforts of sane-minded citizens to Save Foul Bay Road prompted me to rummage around in the back of the desk, and bring forth a time-yellowed tourist guide to the environs of Victoria.

An anonymous constituent sent this to me some time ago, and I have, as yet, been unable to place the date of its publication.

The road-map-style folder was published by the Vancouver Island Development League, and was modestly titled: "Seeing Victoria... guide, with maps to the city, suburbs, motor drives, and chief points of interest... the Pearl of the Pacific... the City Beautiful... the Traveller's Mecca... THE WEST'S LAST GATEWAY."

The reason the current Save Foul Bay campaign reminded me of the folder was a reference to that area contained therein.

Among points of interest is listed: "FOWL (sic) BAY, A lovely little spot within two and a half miles of the city, where many of our families camp for the summer. It can be reached from the city on wheel in 15 minutes. Cars run every 20 minutes from the hour."

One clue to the date of the folder is in a reference to Esquimalt:

"For many years Great Britain's only naval station on the Pacific Coast. The Dock Yard has now been handed over to the Canadian Government and it will, no doubt eventually, be the base on the Pacific for the future Canadian Navy."

Other timely references to tourist attractions; BEACON HILL PARK... contains 300 acres laid out as recreational grounds and pleasure gardens. It contains an aviary, menagerie, bear pit, deer run and swings for children...

"CABOBO BAY... a favorite place for campers and bathers. Within four miles of the city; reached by wheel in half an hour, two miles from the street car..."

"OAK BAY is one of Victoria's most beautiful suburban resorts. The vistas of shore line, sea, islands, foot-hills, mountains and sky being unsurpassed in any part of the world."

"FISHING RESORTS. There are many places around the city where excellent trout fishing is to be had: The Gorge, Pike Lake, and Prospect Lake..."

"POINT COMFORT... an excellent tourist hotel, about half way between Victoria and Vancouver, where splendid fishing and shooting can be had in season. Boats call at Point Comfort about three times a week."

I don't know when the folder was published, but I wish I'd been here at the time.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Oak Bay police reported an attempted break-in overnight on the premises of Croft Corner Store, Oak Bay Avenue and Foul Bay Road.

The handle was discovered to have been knocked off the back door when a staff member went to open the store this morning.

Nothing was taken.

Ian Horne was re-elected president of the board of Royal Jubilee Hospital Thursday evening. Joseph W. Casey was elected vice-president and I. C. Dinning, honorary treasurer. The directors recommended Farmer Construction Ltd. on its low bid of $202,783 for construction of a new psychiatric ward.

Four $25 fines and $3.50 costs each were levied in city police court today for failure to file income tax returns on time.

Fined were Madeline Parker, 710 Fort; John Halliday, 3927 Cadboro Bay Road; Sweetheart Florists, 1801 Fort, and Consolidated Food Services Ltd., 1115 Yates.

Nigeria's Prosperity Envy Of Many, Says Ex-Governor

Nigeria's progress as a free, independent nation of 37,000,000 people has proved the wisdom of Britain's colonial policies, says Sir James Robertson, its former-governor-general, who arrived in Victoria today.

In the 18 months since Nigeria achieved independence, it has achieved a peaceful prosperity that is the envy of many nations, Sir James said.

"Its progress underlines the fact that African nations can attain the full rights of self-government through the slow but sure progress of education and training."

Clear, sunny weather which gave Victoria its warmest temperature of the year Thursday—59 degrees—will continue Saturday and possibly Sunday, according to weatherman William Mackie.

He predicted clear skies for tonight with temperatures ranging between 32 and 40 degrees, and a maximum Saturday of 60 degrees. Winds will be light to northerly at 15 miles per hour.

"There is plenty of storm activity west of us over the Pacific Ocean," Mr. Mackie said, "but so far it's being deflected to the north."

A concert by the Williamette University Choir of Salem, Oregon, will be given in Oak Bay United Church, 1368 Mitchell Street, next Monday at 8 p.m.

Women's Auxiliary of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's) will hold an Easter Bonnet parade at the Golden Slipper, 1318 Broad Street, Saturday, from 2 to 4 p.m.

The annual meeting of the Community Welfare Council of Greater Victoria will be held April 11 at 8 p.m. in the auditorium of St. John Ambulance Headquarters, 941 Pandora Avenue. J. M. Anguish, executive director, will speak on "The Role of a Community Welfare Council."

SHOPPING GUIDE

Out-of-This-World Baking
Will Send You Back for More

By PENNY SAVER

Have you ever tried a Simnel cake? Looks delicious, and if you like fruit cake and marzipan, you'll love this creation. It's a light fruit cake with the marzipan baked right into it. It features a baked marzipan border, icing and a glazed fruit topping. Even sounds good doesn't it? Simnel cake sells for $1 a pound and can be purchased in any quantity, or gift wrapped at no extra charge.

Another mouth-watering cake I saw was a rum layer cake, with rum-flavored butter cream filling and butter cream topping decorated with chocolate shavings. This cake sells for $1, and all the flavoring used is natural.

A Russian galley cake looks very much like a marble cake. It's pressed, which makes it moist and heavy in pink, white and brown marble. Layered with marzipan, it's topped with chocolate fondant. A mere $1 a pound is all you'll have to pay for this delicacy.

Apple and cheese seem to be as synonymous as strawberries and cream or pork and applesauce, so you'll simply drool over the apple cheese tart I've seen.

Made with French puff pastry, with the cheese right in it, and apples mixed with cheese filling, it has a strussel topping.

For 80 cents you can get a tart, seven inches in diameter, or you can buy it by the piece.

Rich French croissant rolls, made with real butter, feature a hard pastry made from an old French recipe. These rolls, heated, would give your breakfast menu a real lift. Price? Only 25 cents for four.

If your mouth is watering like mine was when I left this shop, call me right away for the name.

THE BETTER HALF

"I still don't see what my bidding on the vase had to do with you biting your pipstern in two."

DEAR ABBY...

Silence Is the Best Policy!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I wish I knew what to do about a woman I must see very often, and who is making a nervous wreck of me. Whenever she is around she monopolizes the conversation. She has something to say on every subject, whether she knows anything about it or not. No one can finish a sentence while she is present. She is the kind who can dish it out, but can't take it. Don't tell me to quit seeing her. She is a relative and lives near me, and I don't want a family fight.

NERVOUS.

DEAR NERVOUS: The type of person you describe couldn't care less about listening. All she wants to do is talk. Either you must fight fire with fire—go right on talking, and continue while she attempts to interrupt you—or you must turn in your tongue and surrender.

DEAR ABBY: I belong to a poker club. I won't say I clean up on the girls every week, but I win more than I lose. Whenever I win a pot, one woman says, "Oh, well, lucky in cards—unlucky in love." In other words, my husband is no bargain. I am very satisfied with my husband and I resent the implication. How should I handle her? She is getting on my nerves.

LUCKY IN CARDS.

DEAR LUCKY: Call her bluff and ask her to explain her remark.

DEAR ABBY: I was married to—let's call him "John"—for nine years. During that time "John" endeared himself to my family, who thought he was tops. He wasn't as "tops" as they thought he was, but that's another story.

"John" and I were divorced. My family blamed me. I didn't care to defend myself by tearing down "John," so, of course, he is still tops with my family. When they have family get-togethers, they invite "John." He doesn't have the good sense to refuse, so consequently he and I are thrown together often. This annoys me because I want to be with my family, but I don't enjoy myself with "John" there. Is there a solution?

"JOHN'S" EX.

DEAR EX: Tell the one in your family with whom you feel you can be the most candid that you would like to attend the family get-togethers, but would appreciate knowing in advance if "John" will be there. It is your privilege to protect yourself from social situations which could be embarrassing.

9 CONVENIENT LOCATIONS

Styles for Flabby Arms, Big Hips

NEW YORK (AP)—Hattie Carnegie, a custom house which long ago wooed and won the petite, hard-to-fit woman with its famous little suits, has now added flabby-armed and broad-hipped women to its fan club.

In the spring and summer collection introduced to the fashion press recently were sleeveless "nothing" blouses and sleeveless "nothing" dresses made popular by Jacqueline Kennedy.

But up to now no woman with knobby shoulders or fleshy arms would dare wear them. However the Carnegie '62 versions have wide shoulders that are sometimes capped, often pleated along the armhole to hide a multitude of calorie sins.

Suits, and dresses long and short, camouflage elsewhere by calculating to make the woman look hippy by choice instead of chance. These Carnegie costumes with broader shouldered jackets are also broader beamed, thanks to an abundance of pleats, gathers and tucks attached to tiny, slightly-raised waistlines. The dome-shaped skirt is a favorite silhouette.

SHOWS OTHER IDEAS

Other fashion ideas introduced at the show include:

The spare look. Sheaths, sometimes topped by little jackets are long, lean uncomplicated belted dresses with low-placed pockets and skirts that widen slightly at the hem.

Bread Useful
In Many Ways

Bread in your kitchen cupboard may often be a very useful first-aid in cooking. If tears pour down your cheeks the next time you peel onions, hold a crust of bread between your teeth and see if you don't do the job dry-eyed. When the budget needs stretching—or unexpected company appears—make a bread stuffing, seasoned with onion and poultry seasoning. Use this stuffing to enlarge portions of baked fish, chops or roasts. At other times, if a fluffy omelette becomes deflated, cut it up and add a few more freshly beaten eggs and cook like scrambled eggs. Then serve the eggs on crusty bread slices spread liberally with parsley butter. If bread becomes stale, fresher it this easy way: sprinkle lightly with water, place in a paper bag and set it in a moderate oven, preheated to 350 degrees, until the bread is heated through.

ARMY GIRLS

CAMBERLEY, Eng. (CP)—The army staff college here is taking women students for the first time in its 100-year history. Two captains of the Women's Royal Army Corps will be the first to enroll, taking the same course as the men except the outdoor military tactics.

Dull with bright hues. Grey, dark blue, and beige tweed suits offer shock treatment with bright red, turquoise and orange satin blouses, gathered on the neck.

Funny furs. Beavers were dyed flame red and orange sherbet hues and fashioned into polo coats.

Twist fit. Cocktail and evening dresses of sheer fabric cut on the bias were tucked diagonally around the body to emphasize bosom and waistline and flare out flatteringly at the hip.

TODAY'S RECIPE

TUNA POTATO SCALLOP

Three medium potatoes, peeled, 1 can (6 or 7 ounces) tuna, drained and flaked; 1 medium onion, sliced, 1 (10 ounce) can cream of mushroom soup, ½ cup milk, pepper, 2 tsps. butter.

Slice potatoes thinly. Arrange sliced potatoes, flaked tuna and sliced onion in alternate layers in a greased 1½ quart casserole dish beginning and ending with a layer of potatoes. Combine soup, milk and pepper. Pour combined liquid over contents of casserole. Dot with butter. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) for one hour, or until the potatoes are tender. Makes four to five servings.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

'I Want to Lose Weight—But Not in the Wrong Places'

Q. "I am now on a diet and would like a little advice. I am 5 feet, 2 inches tall and weigh 127 pounds. I would like to lose 10 pounds, but I would like to lose them in the right place. I would like to develop my bust and lose inches from my thighs. Please tell me what to do."

A. With a medium frame you should lose from 8 to 10 pounds. If you will take bust-developing and thigh-slimming exercises during your reducing period and continue them afterward, I am sure you will have happy results.

The following is the best exercise I know for increasing the bust measurement. Bend your elbows up in front of you, arms lifted forward. Grasp the left forearm with the right hand and the right forearm with the left hand. Push the elbows together, resisting with the hands.

It is a good idea to face a mirror when you do this. If you are executing the exercise correctly you will see the chest muscles jump. If you or any of my readers would like to have my exercises for slimming the thighs send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for them to me in care of this newspaper.

Q. "Is there anything that can help me? I am in my early thirties and look ten years older. I have had three children in the last five years. I gained a lot of weight with each one but went on a diet and reduced afterwards."

"However, I am tempted to gain it back, or some of it, because it might make me look better. Do you think hormone creams would help?"

A. If you are the correct weight now do not gain back overweight, unless your doctor wants you to for some reason. Don't be discouraged, because a sudden loss of weight makes one look like that and so does a long illness. You are so young that I am sure time will return you to your former self. No doubt your physician is building up your blood count and exercises will also help overcome the flabbiness. I think one of the hormone creams would be most beneficial for use on your face and neck.

IT'S A STORY

Grandmother Passes on Her Secrets

By PAT DUFOUR

In this, Victoria's centennial year, old newspaper clippings hold a stronger fascination than ever. So it was with more than usual curiosity I whisked through a collection handed down to a friend of mine through her grandmother.

Reading them I found a vivid picture of life in the "old days." It appears that our ancestors drew on their gardens for much more than items to put on the dining room table. Here are a few quotations that tend to prove that the drug-gist must often have been robbed of a sale by a humble vegetable:

"Tomatoes are good for a torpid liver but should be avoided by gouty people."

"Lettuce has a soothing effect on the nerves and is excellent for sufferers from insomnia."

"Watercress is an excellent blood purifier."

"Spinach has great aperient qualities and is far better than medicine for sufferers from constipation."

FLOWER SALADS

And, when it came to choosing ingredients for a salad, our grandmothers had more than a touch of the artist in them.

Flowers served their part in salads as these clippings bear out.

"Hollyhock is one of the flowers that serves for both raw and cooked dishes. It is of the mallow family and has 'cheeses,' as the seed cups are called when young. These are very rich and nutty in flavor and may be eaten raw as a salad or cooked and eaten with butter or cream sauce."

Other flowers that came under the kitchen knife included pansies, sweet alyssums, zinnias, stocks, chrysanthemums and water lilies.

How the women must have labored when it came time to care for the footwear of the family! Here is an indication: "Blackening Brown Boots—Carefully wash the boots with a strong soda water to remove all dirt and grease. Rub as dry as possible with a clean cloth and when quite dry re-pea, the operation with a flannel dipped in liquid ammonia, rubbing this in well. With a brush apply some American ink. When dry, give a second coat. On the following day the boots may be cleaned and polished with any blacking or polish. The finish will be good and permanent."

Laundering, too, was far from the "breeze" it is today. The following advice is typical of our grandmothers' era.

"If satin is very much soiled, pour into about three quarts of soap suds, nearly two table-spoons of kerosene and soak the satin in this for about one or two hours. Work the fabric up and down in warm water and soap and rinse thoroughly. When the satin is almost dry, press carefully."

SWEET SMELLS

If you've wondered why your memories of grandmothers may be synonymous with the fragrance of violets—this may be the answer—

"A housewife who has a fancy to have her clothes scented with violets always puts a good-sized piece of orris root in the boiler and boils it with the clothes. The faint scent clings to the clothes even after they are dried and ironed."

Should hiccoughs plague you at any time maybe this tip from granny's day may help: "To cure hiccoughs mix some granulated sugar in a little good vinegar. A table-spoonful of the mixture will stop the hiccough at once. In a rebellious case a second spoonful can be given, but it is rarely necessary."

And, of course, no good newspaper of that day would go to press without one example of "Golden Advice."

Here is a typical one: "To live within one's income is the secret of prosperity. Happiness is the heritage of one who adheres to this rule. A contented mind and an ever-increasing bank account will belong to the one who buys only what he can pay for."

Children Part of Circus Act

CHICAGO (UPI)—Mother was a bareback rider... that's what the three Zoppe children will be telling their own children one day.

And from the looks of it, there'll always be a Zoppe family in the circus. Roger, 12, and the twins, Dennis and Denise, 8, already ride in the family bareback act. Tiny Denise also perches precariously atop a human tower of Zoppes in another act in which her father balances high on a ladder as if it were stilts, his wife standing on his shoulders and Denise on her shoulders. It doesn't worry Mrs. Zoppe. "Denise knows her daddy won't let her fall. He's very trustworthy," Mrs. Zoppe said in an interview between performances at the Shrine Circus.

Unlike her children, brown-haired, easy-going Peggy Zoppe was not born to the circus. A small-town girl from Fort Morgan, Colo., she never set foot in the sawdust ring until she was 15 and her step-father turned clown.

A year or so later, Peggy donned spangled spurs for a fancy riding act in the old Gil Gray Circus in the West. Next thing she knew, she was getting the eye from another horseman, Joe Zoppe.

They were married within a year and any doubts the new Mrs. Zoppe had about staying with the circus were banished. Handsome, dark-haired Joe hailed from eight generations of Italian circus performers.

STAY TOGETHER

"Sometimes I think I'd like to leave the circus in five or 10 years and settle down," Mrs. Zoppe confessed. "But Joe couldn't do it, and so long as he travels, we want to be with him."

She's long since gotten used to the seemingly insurmountable problems of trying to keep house and bring up three children on the sawdust trail.

First, there's the problem of cooking and keeping house in a small trailer; the big ones are too hard to tow long distances, and the Zoppes also have to carry their horses in a semi-trailer.

It's a job, too, to see that the children keep up with their school work from the Calvert correspondence school in Baltimore.

Mrs. Zoppe, who finished high school herself, through correspondence courses, supervises the home study courses. She tried putting the children in a Dallas, Texas, public school for a few months last year. They liked school and made "B" averages, she said, but balked at the idea of being separated from their parents to stay in school.

Now that the children are in the act, they're up till the evening performance ends at 10, which poses a new problem. They want to stay up after the show and watch television, "but from what I hear," Mrs. Zoppe said, "that's not a problem unique to the circus."

Attend Dance Tonight For View Royal Scouts

Two hundred guests will attend the 11th annual dance of the View Royal Boy Scout Group, being held in the Fraser Street Hall this evening. Affair is semi-formal and music will be by Lou Bishop and his orchestra. Refreshments will be served cabaret style under the convenship of Mrs. N. A. Patton and Mrs. W. G. Rivers. Women's Institutes Present Brief for National Health Plan

A federal health plan, with federal grants administered by the provinces, is favored for a nation-wide health plan by the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada.

This recommendation was made in a brief submitted to the Royal Commission on Health Services at the Ottawa hearings.

The FWIC claim this would ensure that every resident of Canada has access to the health care he needs at a time when he needs it, regardless of his ability to pay at the time of service.

All health should have more recognition, states the brief, than is now given to it; it constitutes a grave threat to those of inadequate incomes. Protection against this and the cost of medical expenses should be considered in an overall social security plan.

The brief deals with services in the fields of chronic patients' rehabilitation program, outpatient clinics, homemaker services, extension of nursing service under public health and physicians and surgeons' insurance.

COUNSELLING

Under the first of the need of more chronic hospitals and homes is pointed out, and counselling service for chronic patients' rehabilitation centres.

Homes for the aged are mentioned in this context for pensioners and those from small income groups. More outpatient clinics are stressed as many tests and simple treatments could be taken care of in this way, under a trained staff.

The need for a subsidized plan for homemaker services is shown. This service can be used in prevention, on oc-

Freezing Meat

Beef roasts and steaks may be stored in a freezer up to a year, but sausages and wieners should not be stored more than about three weeks.

"An elephant was sent from here to Canada. I hope it has reached you by now." This was the birthday message a Calgary woman received from her foster son in India whom she has adopted through the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada. A white toy elephant made by the boy followed the notice a few days later, much to the relief of USC Headquarters staff at 78 Sparks Street, Ottawa.

casions, of physical and family breakdown. This is as urgent as housing and should be rated as top priority.

A nursing service is another need, one that is available to all who ask for it, under a doctor's supervision. This could be financed by a small per capita tax and would enable many convalescent and chronic patients to go home and thus free hospital beds for patients who need more care.

INSURANCE
The greater share of attention was given in this brief to the section on comprehensive medical and surgical insurance. The situation of farmers and small businessmen was pointed out.

To date the only insurance available to individual families and those not covered by group plans is the high-cost private policies beyond the means of those of low income. They should have benefits similar to group plans at low cost.

Another aspect was mentioned: a subscriber who pays these premiums should be able to build up a reserve or back-log for care when they are no longer able to pay, instead of being classed as indigent.

A national plan to provide a reasonable and equal distribution of services and facilities across Canada is imperative, concludes the brief. The health of the nation should be the responsibility of everyone.

Three-Way Care

To keep your skin in good condition three steps are necessary daily. You must wash it to keep it clean, cream it to keep it moist, and massage it to induce circulation.

Boldly patterned, this "jacket overblouse" with a school of black fish on a sea of white cotton is designed with a buttoned placket extending from the waist to the collarless neckline, deep patch pockets and side vents.

Cotton Pads For Tired Eyes

Tired eyes can be lightened up for an evening date by following these make-up tips from a well known beauty authority. Before applying make-up, place cotton pads dampened in cool water and a few drops of skin freshener over your closed eyelids and relax for a few minutes. Next, cover up dark circles under the eyes with erace stick. To conceal the red-rimmed look and make the eyes appear wide awake, line your upper lids with black or brown fluid eyeliner and define the bottom lids with pencil. Blue or green eyeshadow will make the white of the eyes look clearer. To offset the sad look that tired eyes so often have, arch the eyebrows slightly higher than normally, with hairlike strokes from a fine-line eyebrow pencil. Complete eye make-up by applying mascara generously to the lashes.

Plaques for Kitchen

One way to add warmth to any kitchen decor is by hanging wall plaques made of materials that can be easily washed and need no polishing care.

KITCHEN HINTS

Make a dressing for sliced cucumbers with dairy sour cream, instant minced onion, wine vinegar and a dash of tabasco sauce. Season to taste with salt and freshly ground pepper. Instant minced onion is quick to use—simply spoon from its container directly into the dressing.

Instant puddings are versatile and quick and the youngsters love them. For extra quick preparation, use a quart jar or shaker with a secure top. Pour in the cold milk, add the contents of the instant pudding mix package. Cover the container and shake vigorously for one minute. Remove the cover and pour the pudding into dishes. Let them stand until set—about five minutes—and your dessert is ready. Before serving, you can dress up a vanilla pudding with a spoonful of bright jelly. Banana slices can be folded into a banana cream pudding and chocolate or shredded coconut sprinkled over the top. Miniature marshmallows make puffy polka dots in chocolate pudding.

If you need to stretch the vegetable course for extra guests, toss tiny, well-seasoned bread croutons with it, or serve the vegetable in toast cups.

See Your Dentist

Should you find that your gums bleed every time you brush your teeth, run, don't walk, to your dentist's office.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Dinah Shore is singing "The Man I Love" and other heart-throb songs in her one-woman show at the Las Vegas Riviera. The lady customers sigh, but Dinah doesn't act broken-hearted, even boasts, "I'm not changing my dress even once." Eddie Fisher will get a big $150,000 for his Las Vegas Desert Inn engagement next winter—six weeks at 25Gs a week—a deal made long before "Cleopatra."

James Garner likes to explain to new acquaintances that back in Oklahoma his name was Bumgarner, and that his brothers there still use that spelling. "Hollywood convinced me," he says, "that I should take the 'burn' out."

Milton Berle flies in from L.A. to be master of ceremonies at the Friars' tribute to Joe E. Lewis Sunday night. Beldon Katleman says the new El Rancho in Las Vegas, replacing the one that burned down, will open Jan. 1, 1964. Dolores Gray rushed to the Cork Club in Houston to sub for the Ritz Bros. because of Al Ritz's sudden illness.

Tony Quinn says in baseball it's fine to play it safe—but not in acting, where one must risk and gamble, trying roles that are different and seem hard. "I go back to my friend John Barrymore," says Quinn, "who told me, 'You can only be as good as you dare to be bad.'"

Alfred Hitchcock got Grace Kelly to work for him several times—but Paul Newman now that's different. Hitch got Newman and Joanne Woodward to come to dinner, as Leo Gullik tells it in his book "Hollywood Screwballs." Hitch planned the dinner carefully, including the wines. Paul, an Ohio boy, took off his jacket and tie immediately after arriving, rolled up his sleeves and said, "Boy, I'd love a beer!" Hitch, who didn't think it would go with the peasant, said he'd send for some, but Newman said, "Don't bother, I'll get it!" And did. Drank out of the bottle, too! No, they'll probably never work together.

THE MIDNIGHT EARL... A woman got so angry at Bob Mitchum—who plays a sadistic ex-convict in "Cape Fear"—that she threw her pocketbook at the screen while watching him take out

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Jeff Niemi, age 10, of Tucson, Ariz., for his question:

What Is a Grunion?

The grunion is a fish that you can catch on land. You need no fishing pole, no bait and no net to scoop him into your frying-pan. In fact, it is illegal to use any fishing equipment to catch a grunion. This silvery sliver of a fish is so easy to catch and so good to eat that his home state of California has made laws to protect him. You may catch him only with your bare hands.

The most amazing thing about the grunion fish is his family life. At certain seasons, thousands of grunion slither up onto the beaches to lay their eggs. For two weeks, the precious eggs lay buried in the wet sand above the level of the water. Then a high tide comes and sweeps them out to sea, just in time for a new generation of baby grunion to hatch.

So far as we know, grunion live only off the coast of Southern and Lower California. They are slender, silvery-colored fishes and their slim fins are fringed with prickly spines. Through most of the year, great schools of them hover in the sunny, shallow waters just off the shores. Through the summer, at just the right time of the month, they make their amazing trips to the beaches.

The excursion takes place on the second or third night after a full moon or a brand new moon. It is timed 15 to 40 minutes after the night high tide. Suddenly, thousands of the silvery fishes hit the beaches of California. They ride the big, incoming rollers and, as the waves break gently on the sand, the slithery little fishes swim ahead until they seem to be stranded.

Each mother fish is in the company of several father fish. The male and female eggs are laid separately in the wet sand where they merge together.

The female starts to wriggle back and forth, using her silvery tail to dig a hole in the soft, wet sand. When she is partly buried, she lays her eggs. The male fishes curve around the nest and lay their eggs on the surface of the sand.

All this work may be done in half a minute, though grunion can stay out of the water safely for several minutes. When the job is done, they wriggle back to the water where a big wave washes them out to sea. The little, coral-pink eggs lay buried in the warm, wet sand for two weeks when the next high tide reaches their nest and washes them also out to sea. The babies hatch about three minutes after they are freed by the tide.

DRAMA FESTIVAL

Kamloops Pinch-Hitters Walk Off With Top Prize

By AUDREY JOHNSON

A group that almost didn't make it, having been eliminated in the preliminary round, walked away with the Festival
Trophy Thursday night as the Dominion Drama Festival B.C.
Regional ended.

The trophy a carved myrtle-wood statue entitled "Meditation," went to North Kamloops
P.T.A. Theatre Wing for the Malayan war play, "The Long and the Short and the Tall."

Kamloops was invited to fill the fourth place in the festival program only after Vancouver Little Theatre's entry withdrew because of inadequate lighting at Oak Bay Junior High School, scene of the festival.

Acted by a youthful cast the play also brought its director, Tom Kerr, the best director award.

Yet a third award to the Kamloops entry, was "best performance by a player in a supporting role." This went to George Girvan who played a Scots soldier.

David Gardner also named
Vera Trueman, Victoria
Theatre Guild, Kay Irving, Leo Henriksen, Virginia Blair, all of New Westminster, Gordon Dancer of Kamloops and Ralph Burgess, Victoria Intimate Stage, as runners-up for this award.

MORE LIVES CYTOLOGY PROGRAMME LEADS THE

RESULTS of accomplishments of Cytological Diagnostic Service in B.C. are displayed by Dr. H. K. Fidler, director of the service. Examinations of 93,000 slides turned up 227 cases of early cancer of cervix, at stage when disease is virtually 100 per cent curable.

Peace Power Reports Open To UBC Profs

VANCOUVER — Special reports on the Peace River hydro project will be made available to a University of British Columbia group of professors who last month criticized the $600,000,000 project.

Dr. Gordon Shrum, chairman of the BC Electric and the BC Energy Board, said Thursday the professors will be given copies of the Mirz and McLellan and Sir Alexander Gibb reports on the Peace River project.

To assist them in their study the professors will also be given the services of Dr. John Davis, B.C.E. research director and the energy board's chief engineer, Ralph Purcell.

HIGHWAY TALKS SET

KITIMAT — Four northern Social Credit members of the B.C. legislature whose constituencies border controversial Highway 16 will meet with the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Central B.C. and Alaskan affiliates at Hazelton April 16.

Highways Minister Gagliardi will also attend the meeting to discuss the highway which links Prince Rupert and Prince George.

UP TO SHIP OWNERS

VANCOUVER — The future of 11 striking Spanish seamen from the Panamanian freighter Hernan Cortes depends on the decision of the vessel's Spanish owners.

The men left the ship in Port Alberni, complaining the food was bad and working conditions poor. They are now in a sailors' home here where their food and lodging bill is being met by the ship's agents.

WHY BCE SEIZED

KAMLOOPS — The federal government's unwillingness to co-operate with the provincial government in bringing down power rates made it necessary for the B.C. government to take over the B.C. Electric, R. N. Thompson, Social Credit national leader, said in an interview Thursday.

He charged Justice Minister Fulton is inconsistent in his objections to power export, since gas and oil have been exported to the United States for years.

FREED OF ASSAULT

TRAIL — A charge of assault arising out of ill feeling towards the Sons of Freedom Doukhobors, was dismissed in police court Thursday.

Arthur Haywood of Trail, was found not guilty of assaulting and injuring an International Woodworkers of America official, Joe Esakin of Grand Forks.

VANCOUVER ISLAND ROUNDUP

$1 Million Industry Threatened, Angus Probe Told

COURTENAY — The Angus Commission has been told a $1,000,000 tourist industry in the Courtenay-Comox area may vanish unless salmon runs on the Puntledge River are restored.

Hydro installations on the river of the B.C. Power Commission have been blamed for losses in fish numbers. H. E. Angus, the sole commissioner at hearings here and earlier in Vancouver, will decide whether increased facilities are needed to preserve the salmon.

The Chamber of Commerce here said fish and power are both needed, but fishing must be looked on as a major industry and the safe ascent and descent of fish must be assured.

Other briefs lending strong support to the wily fish came from the Auto Courts and Resorts Association, the Save Our Salmon Committee, Salmon Unlimited of Campbell River, the Native Sons of Canada, and Roderick Haig-Brown, well-known Campbell River fisherman, naturalist and writer.

The hearings are continuing.

99.9% Dial Phones

By the end of this year, 99.9 per cent of the telephones on Vancouver Island will be dial operated, according to Gordon C. MacDonald, Island division manager of the B.C. Telephone Co., with headquarters in Victoria.

He said 11 new automatic systems are scheduled to go into service as follows:

Port Alberni, at midnight Saturday; Cobble Hill and Lake Cowichan, in May; Port Hardy, Port Alice and Port McNeill in October, and Courtenay, Comox and Denman Island in November.

Money to be spent this year on new construction will include about $1,400,000 in Victoria; $1,700,000 for Nanaimo; $4,000,000 at Campbell River; and $2,000,000 for all districts, for a total on Vancouver Island of $9,200,000.

DEEP-SEA SHIPS IN PORT

Victoria — King Charles, Demosthenes D. Spiros Polemis, Woldingham Hill, Thoralsie, Chemainus — Denmark Hill, Crofton — Cyra, Harmae — Michigan, Nanaimo — Atlantic Gladiator, Mostun, Santa Constance, Texada — Nitta Maru, Duncan Bay — Trollegen, Tahsis — Mornbassa, Hernand Cortes.

Alberni — Stove Transport, Kongsolm, Kirriemoor.

TAKE TIME OUT FOR SURVIVAL

Your Last Chance to Earn as you Serve under the Special Canadian Army Militia Training Programme

The final six-week course of paid training offered by the Canadian Army Militia in connection with its national survival role in case of nuclear attack takes place in your own community from April 16 to May 27 — and vacancies are limited. Don't miss this last chance!

If you are between 18 and 50, and meet enrolment standards, you have the opportunity to help Canada on a vitally important job — and earn while you serve. During the course you will be given all-day training five days a week. You will live at home and receive the same pay as a regular soldier, plus a living allowance.

To be sure of a vacancy, however, you should act right away. For complete information and enrolment details — chosen by Recreation Minister Earle C. Westwood for Campbell River's friendly sea serpent.

The winning name, one of more than 50 submitted in a contest run by weekly newspaper publisher Murray Poskitt, was entered by young John Demidoff of Campbell River. He won $10.

In announcing his selection, Mr. Westwood noted the contest created "a great deal of interest across the country." The name "Klamaito," he noted, was the Indian name for the spit at the entrance to Campbell River where the serpent was known to have been seen many times.

CAMPBELL RIVER — A giant "sourdough" supper will be one of the highlights of the novel "Highway Celebration Day" to be held here April 12.

Day-long ceremonies will mark the start of work on the final stage of the Campbell River Kelsey Bay road, and publicize what will soon be the new route to northern B.C. and Alaska.

Alaskan representative at the ceremonies will be Mr. R. Downing, commissioner of highways and public works for the state. Others taking part in events during the day will be Dan Campbell, MLA for the district; William Hawkins, commissioner of Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau and heads of northern Chambers of Commerce.

PARKVILLE — A seminar

for Vancouver Island school trustees will open tonight at the Island Hall, then continue all day Saturday and to noon on Sunday.

It is a joint project of the University of B.C. and B.C. School Trustees' Association, and will have as its theme "The Role of the Trustee in Education."

The seminar staff will include Dr. Kenneth F. Argue, professor of education, UBC; Dr. Denis C. Smith, associate professor, college of education, UBC; Dr. Coile Vernie, UBC professor of adult education; Bert Curtis, assistant director, ing a four-day course, on successive Saturdays — on new methods of teaching mathematics, in elementary and junior high school grades.

They are J. M. Evans, principal, Mrs. A. J. Hepburn, Mrs. W. J. Seymour, Mrs. P. A. Jackson, and Mrs. D. McLeod.

Power-Packed Session Ends

By FRANK RUTTER

The legislative session that began with New Year's "goodwill" resolutions on all sides ended Thursday night, the longest in 42 years, after two fierce and bitter weeks of debate on power and politics.

Early Election Threat

OTTAWA—Prime Minister John Diefenbaker today threatened to dissolve parliament and go to the country in an immediate general election if the Opposition did not stop "filibustering."

The threat was made during the morning question period after a number of questions were directed at the prime minister about the government's election plans, by Liberal front benchers.

"In view of the Opposition filibustering," said Mr. Diefenbaker, "it may be necessary to make an early answer which will satisfy" Opposition members.

EXAMPLE SET

He was replying to a plea voiced by J. W. Pickersgill, former Liberal immigration minister, to follow the example set by former Prime Minister St. Laurent in 1949 and state "frankly and in a statesmanlike way" what the government's intentions are.

The exchange was sparked by another Liberal front benchman, former Liberal health minister Martin. He cited an earlier statement by External Affairs Minister Howard Green that a heads-of-state meeting may be held in Geneva shortly and asked whether this would interfere with any plans of the prime minister. He was obviously referring to Mr. Diefenbaker's plans for an election.

The prime minister did not reply directly. However, he said that Mr. Martin had personal motives for calling for an election.

TAUNT HURLED BACK

Mr. Martin thumped his desk in applause for the prime minister's declaration, but no one else did.

"He is the only one who applauds," noted Mr. Diefenbaker. He went on to say that Mr. Martin wanted an election because he was anxious to replace Lester Pearson as leader of the Opposition.

Mr. Martin jumped to his feet and shouted that Mr. Diefenbaker's successor would be the "present leader of the Opposition."

Mr. Pickersgill then took the floor and asked the prime minister to disclose his election plans.

Majority opinion appears to single out June 18 as the most likely date.

Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes prorogued the House at 8:15 p.m. to climax two weeks of day and night sittings which brought the 45-day session to a close. There were 17 night sittings.

The ceremony made law of the two bills which precipitated the temper of the punishing finale:

Bill 84, merging B.C. Electric and B.C. Power Commission;

Bill 85, changing last August's B.C. Electric takeover legislation to kill recourse to the courts for shareholders seeking better compensation.

Mr. Pearkes made a brief speech singling out various pieces of legislation as noteworthy accomplishments of the session.

He mentioned the B.C. Electric-Power Commission merger as of "benefit to the people and industry of the province."

But he made no mention at all of the other big power bill.

The pre-session resolutions of goodwill were broken within five days when the CCF, rechristened New Democratic Party-CCF, and the Social

Two Chairmen For B.C. Hydro

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Legislative Reporter

The new B.C. Hydro and Power Authority today took over all B.C. Electric and B.C. Power Commission operations.

The merger was completed at a special cabinet meeting Thursday night immediately after the end of the legislative session which set up the new authority.

Reductions of up to 20 per cent in electric light bills for all residents of the province arrived by the new authority are expected within the next few days.

With the proclamation of the special act merging the public power utilities, the cabinet also appointed two men to run jointly the new agency.

Sharing the job of chairman at a salary of $40,000 each are Dr. Gordon Shrum, former B.C. Electric chairman, and Dr. H. L. Keenleyside, former boss of the power commission.

Seven other directors were appointed:

Einar Gunderson, who gets $27,500;
W. C. Mearns, $27,500;
A. Lee, $27,500;
Lands, Forests and Water Resources Minister Ray Williston and Mines Minister Kenneth Kiernan, with no extra salary;
F. A. Smith and J. Dunsmyr, will receive directors' fees of $2,500 each.
Dr. Shrum, Dr. Keenleyside, Mr. Gunderson, Mr. Mearns and Mr. Lee were also appointed to the executive management committee which will run actual operation of the new B.C. Hydro.
Mr. Williston, Mr. Kiernan, Mr. Smith and Mr. Dunsmyr are directors only.
All the directors were either on the board of B.C. Electric or on the power commission.

Two BCE Directors Dropped

Two B.C. Electric directors, former lieutenant-governor Frank M. Ross and lawyer Arthur Fouks are dropped from the new agency.

Dr. Keenleyside's salary is doubled with his new appointment. Dr. Shrum gets the same as he did with B.C. Electric.

With the merger comes a new legal twist to the battle by former B.C. Electric shareholders for better compensation and cancellation of last August's takeover legislation.

B.C. Electric assets were placed in the hands of a receiver by the courts two weeks ago.

But the merger eliminates B.C. Electric, puts its assets under the new B.C. Hydro, and bans any court action regarding the former private utility. Whether or not this cancels the receivership is not yet clear.

But a court judgment on the government's appeal of this action is expected within days.

Two other power developments followed the merger order today.

Mr. Williston was officially sworn into office as minister of water resources as well as lands and forests.

The ceremony took place at 9 a.m. at Government House.

A new department of water resources was established by the legislature.

The other new move was appointment of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce as banker for B.C. Hydro.

AFTER 75-FOOT FALL

Tot Saved From Niagara Gorge

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—A three-year-old girl was rescued early today 11 hours after she fell 75 feet to a rocky ledge above the Niagara River gorge.

She will be released from hospital this afternoon.

April Hubbard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hubbard, was cold, frightened, and hungry, but suffered only minor scratches and bruises in the fall that was broken by a tree and soft mud.

April's rescuers were four men who belong to a newly formed rescue unit. They continued to clamber the treacherous walls of the gorge three hours after full-scale searching was called off by darkness.

Off-duty Stamford Township Police Sgt. Russell Sanderson, playing his flashlight over the rocks, spotted the girl as she rested on a wet rock.

"She was huddled on her back against the base of a sheer wall," Sgt. Sanderson said.

"Her hands were tightly clenched under her chin, and below her was a strip of loose rock at about a 60 degree angle."

With Sgt. Sanderson were Richard Gorman, a rigger for Ontario Hydro, and George Williams and Ben Schweitzer.

"She was shivering, wide awake, and frightened, but she never even cried—not even a whimper—although she was soaking wet," said Gorman.

April tumbled down the gorge wall while she was playing with some young friends during the afternoon. Her companions—if they were aware she had fallen—were too young to give police an accurate picture of what had happened.

The scene of the mishap was about a quarter-mile below the falls. The girl was brought to the top of the gorge in a fire department rescue basket about 3:15 a.m.

REPORTS ON GENEVA TALKS

Green Sees Hope of Agreement

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Green said today he gets annoyed "with all this attitude of hopelessness" about disarmament, Berlin and nuclear tests.

The remark was fairly typical of his folksy report to the Commons on the Geneva disarmament conference from which he returned Thursday night.

He said there is no reason why there shouldn't be East-West agreement on at least some disarmament points fairly soon.

The minister said Canada's main purpose at the conference was to pinpoint subjects on which there is near agreement between the United States and Russia. There were "quite a few" of these areas where it wouldn't take a great deal of effort to get the two sides together.

Mr. Green said he hopes that "before too long" agreement will be reached on the preamble for a disarmament treaty.

Paul Martin (L.-Essex East) said that if this were the measure of foreseeable achievement, one could see the great difficulty in reaching a comprehensive agreement.

Mr. Green said he believes there would be "great value" in acceptance of the Canadian proposal for a nuclear ban in outer space.

There was no reason why agreement couldn't be reached on this matter. Once weapons of mass destruction were in orbit, it would be "much tougher" to do anything about it.

Mr. Green said there has been a suggestion for informal meetings at the conference at which no record could be kept and delegates could "let their hair down."

Mr. Green did not repeat in the Commons his comments about U.S. policy which he made to reporters Thursday night at the airport.

He told reporters then that any resumption of U.S. nuclear testing would be a setback for the conference and that "usually" Canada has better ideas than the U.S.

H. W. Herridge, parliamentary leader of the CCF-NDP group, said he admires Mr. Green's stubborn determination to remain undismayed by the difficulties at Geneva.

Mr. Green's "self-effacing, mumblelike qualities" had proved very valuable and his report to the House was one of the best ever delivered in the Commons.

Centennial Flashback...

THIS DAY IN VICTORIA 1862

MARCH 30

Messrs. Franklin, auctioneers, reported that the auction held March 27 disposed of 16 lots at prices ranging upward from $300. Highest price was $1,425 for a 74-foot by 100-foot lot at the corner of Douglas and Cormorant.

M. Pierre Brassen, a former soldier of Napoleon who is now over 75 years old, left here to seek his fortune in the Cariboo as a gold miner.

Mr. Franklin gave notice of a motion in the House of Assembly committee on supply to reject the "£400 for charitable purposes" in the estimates, and substitute a tax of one shilling tuppence on each passenger arriving in the colony, the proceeds therefrom to form a special fund in aid of the hospital.

The fine new schooner North Star, owned by Messrs. McQuade, went on sailing trials in the Outer Harbor, and acquitted herself well. She will load shortly for the Stickeen.

MOTEL OWNERS BUY C & C TAXI

Heaney Cartage Sold For Nearly $1 Million

Heaney Cartage and Storage Ltd. has been sold to a Vancouver firm, it was announced today on the heels of news that the C & C Transportation Company also has changed hands.

The two transactions, involving firms among the oldest of their kind in Victoria, were entirely separate. Both will continue operating under their present names.

Johnston National Storage Ltd., biggest cartage and storage company in Canada, bought out the Heaney firm for almost $1,000,000.

C & C, which operates a fleet of more than 50 taxis and buses, was bought by Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Nordal, Victoria motel operators, for an undisclosed sum.

STAYS AS DIRECTOR

William Heaney, scion and majority shareholder of the family firm, established in 1890, will continue as a director and also will join the board of the Johnston National Storage.

Robert W. McKenzie, manager of Heaney's, will carry on as general manager of the firm.

The company owns seven warehouses and shops on six properties, 78 vehicles ranging from escort cars to giant tractor units, 25 semi-trailers and five mobile cranes ranging up to 25-ton size.

140 EMPLOYEES

It employs about 140 persons.

"The firm will carry on here under its present name and as a separate entity," said Mr. Heaney. "Mr. McKenzie, who has been with the company for 31 years and had a minority interest, will carry on as general manager."

A Johnston National official said the price has not been finally determined "but will be in the vicinity of, but under, $1,000,000."

He said the parent firm, before the sale, employed 650 workers and operated 450 vehicles and cranes throughout

Metropolitan Victoria 14th Largest in Canada

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The population of Victoria's metropolitan area soared to 154,132 in 1961, an increase of 36.2 per cent in the past 10 years, according to the report of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics based on the latest census.

The population of the incorporated city of Victoria alone now stands at 54,941, an increase of 7 per cent in the last decade.

Fully 60 per cent of Canada's population growth in the 1951-61 decade took place within the Metropolitan area boundaries of 17 major centres in Canada, including Winnipeg, with over two-thirds of this metropolitan growth occurring outside the main central cities.

HIGH RATE

The 1961 census indicates that the growth within metropolitan areas is continuing at a high rate compared with the rest of Canada.

Victoria's metropolitan area census in 1961 stood at 154,132 compared with 133,829 in 1956 and 113,207 in 1951. The percentage increase in the period 1951 to 1961 was 36.2 per cent; in the 1956-61 period it was 15.2 per cent and from 1951 to 1956 it was 18.2 per cent.

For the incorporated city of Victoria alone the population figure in 1961 was shown as 54,941 compared with 54,584

'Princess Day' All Set June 16

By IAIN HUNTER

Over 1,000 members of the "regimental family" of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's) will celebrate a "regimental day" with their colonel-in-chief on Saturday, June 16. Her Royal Highness Princess Mary, the Princess Royal and aunt of the Queen, will devote a whole day to her regiment in Victoria during her visit to the city, it was announced today.

Although this is Victoria's centennial year, regimental spokesmen said the royal visit is primarily to present the new colors to the regiment. These are the colors bearing the battle honors won during the Second World War in North-western Europe by the First Battalion.

Available since 1959, they received royal approval in 1958.

VETERANS PARADE

Plans, which have been under discussion since January of 1961, call for a parade of Canadian Scottish veterans to the Pioneer Square regimental cenotaph on the Saturday morning. The Princess Royal will inspect what is expected to be the largest concentration ever held of veterans from both wars.

The parade will be under the command of Col. L. S. Henderson, who commanded the first battalion during the last months of fighting in Europe, and later the occupation battalion in Germany after the war.

400 CADETS

The veterans' parade will be followed by a parade of 400 cadets of corps affiliated with the regiment from University School, Qualicum College, Victoria, Duncan, Alberni and Courtenay. The parade in MacDonald Park will be under the command of Capt. Angus Davie.

The main parade for the presentation of colors will be held in the afternoon at Beacon Hill Park.

Under the command of Lt. Col. Peter Ramsay, 300 troops of four guards, the pipes and drums and a regular army band, will troop the old colors for the last time before the colonel-in-chief.

The new colors to be presented by Princess Mary will be consecrated by the Protestant director of chaplain services from Ottawa, Col. T. A. Brown.

DINNER

In the evening, a regimental dinner for veterans of both world wars and serving officers of the regiment will be held on the main floor of the Bay Street Armory. Some 600 members of the regimental family are expected to sit down to dinner with their colonel-in-chief.

Col. Ramsay, present commanding officer of the unit, said the regiment has been planning for the event for a long time.

"This is the most important peacetime event ever held by the Canadian Scottish," he said.

FIVE COMPANIES

"Since January the presentation of colors has been the focal point of all training in the unit. The ceremony is difficult enough for a unit in the regular army which can devote its full time preparing for it. It is even more so for a militia unit, particularly when it is detached in five localities as ours is," he added.

The regiment has companies in Victoria, Duncan, Alberni, Courtenay and Nanaimo.

SINGLE BARRACKS

A concentration already has been held in Nanaimo this February, one of the few times the regiment has been able to get together as a unit. Two more on-island concentrations are scheduled for April 8 and May 6.

Immediately before the ceremony, the regiment as a whole will move into a single barracks in Victoria for a week.

This will be the second visit of the Princess Royal to her Canadian Regiment and Victoria. She was here last in 1955.

Campus Field Solution To 'Rhubarb'

Solution to a conflict of dates at Royal Athletic Park this summer may come from establishment of a baseball diamond at the Gordon Head Campus.

Hugh Farquhar, administrative official at Victoria College, said today that the college would "do everything it can to co-operate in helping out the city."

Under study is a compromise plan in which the city, and possibly surrounding municipalities, would spend up to $25,000 in erecting a backstop and bleachers on one of the campus fields for temporary use of the Victoria senior baseball league.

The league's officials recently protested that the historical pageant and other centennial events scheduled for Royal Athletic Park would force cancellation of the four-team schedule and end senior baseball here.

Proposed solution would enable the league to play at Gordon Head when Royal Athletic is tied up this summer; save the city several thousands of dollars that would have been spent in providing a rough diamond at Topaz Park; provide the campus with a hardball diamond.

TRAFFIC FINES

In city police court today: Robert West, 1249 Burnside, over 30 mph, $20.

Clifford Chudy, Brentwood, over 30 mph, $20 and licence suspended.

Gordon Pedersen, Central Saanich, no signal, $15.

Lee Sam, 1316 Bay, Careless driving, $35.

Marric Pavlicic, 338 Niagara, no current driver's licence, $25.

Ghazi Underwood, 5172 West Saanich Road, no current driver's licence, $15.

Bomb Scare Judgment Reserved

Judgment was reserved until Monday in city police court today for a man accused of instituting a bomb scare at Patricia Bay Airport March 17.

Application for dismissal of the charge was turned down by the magistrate.

Harold Thomas, 1214 Yates Street, is charged with giving information, he knew to be false with intent to cause injury or alarm.

Defence lawyer James Proudfoot argued the prosecution had proved neither intent nor knowledge the information was false.

"I think this is a case to be met," said Magistrate William Oester.

KEPT IN JAIL

He regretted the defendant would have to be kept in jail until Monday but he said he needed time for his judgment. Five witnesses were called to the stand by prosecutor Angus Smith.

Dorothy Sparshatt, 2217 Quadra, said she received a call from the defendant at 4:35 p.m. March 17 warning her there was a bomb on a TCA plane.

"He told me someone had called him and told him so. He said he did not have a reservation on any flight."

GAVE NAME

Miss Sparshatt said Thomson gave her his name and telephone number.

Robert Kolb, 902 Government, district sales manager of TCA, called the RCMP when he was informed of the call.

"I went to the Yates Street address of Thomson after Mr. Kolb, phoned us," said Cpl. Reginald Blackmore, RCMP.

Cpl. Blackmore said Thomson admitted making the call but did not tell him someone had called him first.

Thomson evidently feared someone was trying to kill him for his insurance, the corporal said.

DRINKING

"It was obvious to me Thomson had been drinking before I went to his place," Blackmore said.

He described Thomson's condition as "impaired, not drunk."

ASK The TIMES

Q. What is the origin of the word "margarine"? M. F. R.

A. The word comes from the Greek word used in reference to the pearly lustre of crystals or scales. It was adopted in chemistry as Margarine, the name of one of these fatty acids, derivatives of which were thought to form the chief constituents of animal fats. Margarine, now used to describe any substitute of butter made from Oleomargarine, the liquid substance extracted from beef fat under pressure and allowed to solidify, is a misapplication of the chemical term.

Q. We wish to design a float for the May 24 parade here in Victoria. Could you please tell us what length the longest float in the world was? O.P.

A. The Chinese community in Saigon paraded a 1,375-foot dragon to commemorate the first anniversary of the South Vietnam police force in May, 1956.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers may be published daily.

CEMETERY OFFERS SHORT COURSE IN B.C. HISTORY

Rapidly becoming one of the most interesting places in the city for a stroll is Ross Bay Cemetery, where improvements and research have "brought to light" graves of some of the province's pioneers.

One of the main improvements has been by the B.C.

Historical Association which has placed special markers on the graves of five former premiers.

In these cases there was no mention on their headstones of their former positions. The special stones, of a standard form, can be seen here as listing the accomplishments of the leaders concerned.

This particular project was carried out by the association with a $1,000 grant provided by the provincial government for the purpose. Graves of former lieutenant-governors will be marked by the society, while other special groups will undertake restoration and special marking projects.

For instance, the Woman's Institutes of Craigflower and Lake Hill are responsible for the restoration and marker at the grave of Kenneth MacKenzie, first bailiff of Craigflower Farm.

Victoria section of the association provided the marker on the grave of Thomas Harris, first mayor of Victoria, and restoration of the Bishop Hills grave has been done by the Anglican Synod.

The work has pointed out noteworthy facts which are carefully recorded in history, but often forgotten.

For instance, a reading of the inscriptions on the Sir Richard McBride grave shows that he apparently was only 33 years of age when he assumed the premiership, and actually he was 32!

In an age which places emphasis on youth, and tends to depreciate the achievements of its forebears, that particular record comes as a bit of a shock.

It should be pointed out that in the picture of the McBride stones, the dates "1870-1937" apply to Lady McBride. Sir Richard, worn by stress of politics, economic difficulties of the time, and war worries, died in 1917.

A discrepancy turned up on the headstone of Hon. A. E. B. Davie. His age is given as 42 years, while the correct age at death, carefully researched and inscribed on the historical association plaque, indicates he was only 41.

MONTE ROBERTS

The current and laudable efforts of sane-minded citizens to Save Foul Bay Road prompted me to rummage around in the back of the desk, and bring forth a time-yellowed tourist guide to the environs of Victoria.

An anonymous constituent sent this to me some time ago, and I have, as yet, been unable to place the date of its publication.

The road-map-style folder was published by the Vancouver Island Development League, and was modestly titled: "Seeing Victoria... guide, with maps to the city, suburbs, motor drives, and chief points of interest... the Pearl of the Pacific... the City Beautiful... the Traveller's Mecca... THE WEST'S LAST GATEWAY."

The reason the current Save Foul Bay campaign reminded me of the folder was a reference to that area contained therein.

Among points of interest is listed: "FOWL (sic) BAY, 'A lovely little spot within two and a half miles of the city, where many of our families camp for the summer. It can be reached from the city on wheel in 15 minutes. Cars run every 20 minutes from the hour.'"

One clue to the date of the folder is in a reference to Esquimalt:

"For many years Great Britain's only naval station on the Pacific Coast. The Dock Yard has now been handed over to the Canadian Government and it will, no doubt eventually, be the base on the Pacific for the future Canadian Navy."

Other timely references to tourist attractions: BEACON HILL PARK... contains 300 acres laid out as recreational grounds and pleasure grounds. It contains an aviary, menagerie, bear pit, deer run and swings for children...

"CABBAGE BAY... a favorite place for campers and bathers. Within four miles of the city, reached by wheel in half an hour, two miles from the street car..."

"OAK BAY is one of Victoria's most beautiful suburban resorts. The vistas of shore line, sea, islands, foot-hills, mountains and sky being unsurpassed in any part of the world."

"FISHING RESORTS. There are many places around the city where excellent trout fishing is to be had: The Gorge, Pike Lake, and Prospect Lake..."

"POINT COMFORT... an excellent tourist hotel, about half way between Victoria and Vancouver, where splendid fishing and shooting can be had in season. Boats call at Point Comfort about three times a week."

I don't know when the folder was published, but I wish I'd been here at the time.

Or was I?

J. E. BOSHER
international fame

'Father' of B.C. Bulb Industry Retires Here

The man who is known to farmers as the "father of the bulb industry in British Columbia" retired today as plant pathologist at the Dominion Experimental Farm, Saanichton.

He is J. E. Boshier, who achieved international recognition for his work in plant pathology dealing with the attacks of the parasitic roundworm, otherwise known as nematodes, on plants.

Farmers claim it was due to Mr. Boshier's guidance that the B.C. bulb industry grew from nothing to become an important part of the agricultural economy of Vancouver Island and the lower mainland.

But he carried out equally as important research work on ornamental plants. Born in England, Mr. Boshier came to Canada in 1919 as a youth. He joined the federal plant pathology laboratory at Saanichton in 1930 where he began devising methods of controlling various types of plant diseases.

$3 Million Subsidy for Toll Service

The B.C. government will pay a subsidy of $2,939,942 for the last year's operations of its Toll Bridges and Highways Authority.

A cabinet order established the figure today.

All toll projects are self-liquidating according to Premier Bennett, but the government contributes an annual operating subsidy of 24 per cent of their indebtedness.

New debt figures for the nine Toll Authority operations were calculated as the basis of the past year's subsidy.

$117 MILLION DEBT

Total debt for roads, bridges and ferries is $117,597,709.

The ferry system—Swartz Bay—Tsawwassen, Nanaimo—Horseshoe Bay, Gulf Islands and Sechart services—owes $26,968,736.

Biggest debt is $29,218,435 for the Deas Island Tunnel.

The Second Narrows Bridge in Vancouver owes $24,206,268.

First Narrows is down to $6,054,053.

The Toll Authority also operates the Agassiz-Rosedale, Nelson, Okanagan Lake and Oak Street bridges, and the Oak St-Deas Island Highway on the lower mainland.

Vic College Project Gets Ottawa Grant

A grant of $7,750 has been awarded by the Defence Research Board to assist in a research project of a member of the Victoria College physics department, it was announced today.

He is Dr. David Rankin, who initiated the project with Prof. Harry Dosso, also a member of the college physics staff. The two men will work together on the project, a study of the magneto-telluric effect, which will add to the understanding of the earth's magnetic field and of the earth's geological structure.

Models will be used, and the project will be housed in one of the huts at the Gordon Head campus. It will be moved into the new science building when the latter is available.

Dr. John L. Climenhaga, head of the department, said the grant is the first to be made to the department.

"Research will play an increasing part in our program here," he said. "We are getting under way on a number of projects, and are looking forward to starting more."

Requiem Mass Tuesday For Prelate

Solemn Pontifical Requiem Mass will be held Tuesday at 11 a.m. in St. Andrew's Cathedral for the Most Reverend James Hill, Bishop of Victoria, who died Thursday.

Presiding at the service will be Archbishop Sebastiano Bagio, apostolic delegate to Canada who will arrive from Ottawa by air Monday.

Also scheduled to participate are Archbishop W. M. Duke of Vancouver and Most Rev. Martin Johnson, Coadjutor Archbishop of Vancouver.

The body will lie in state from 1:30 p.m. Sunday in the Cathedral. Arrangements are in the hands of McCall Brothers.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Oak Bay police reported an attempted break-in overnight on the premises of Croft Corner Store, Oak Bay Avenue and Foul Bay Road.

The handle was discovered to have been knocked off the back door when a staff member went to open the store this morning.

Nothing was taken.

Ian Hor—was re-elected president of the board of Royal Jubilee Hospital Thursday evening. Joseph W. Casey was elected vice-president and I. C. Dinning, honorary treasurer. The directors recommended Farmer Construction Ltd. on its low bid of $202,783 for construction of a new psychiatric ward.

Four $25 fines and $350 costs each were levied in city police court today for failure to file income tax returns on time.

Fined were Madeline Parker, 710 Fort; John Halliday, 3927 Cadboro Bay Road; Sweetheart Florists, 1801 Fort, and Consolidated Food Services Ltd., 1115 Yates.

Nigeria's Prosperity Envy Of Many, Says Ex-Governor

Nigeria's progress as a free independent nation of 37,000,000 people has proved the wisdom of Britain's colonial policies, says Sir James Robertson, its former governor-general, who arrived in Victoria today.

In the 18 months since Nigeria achieved independence, it has achieved a peaceful prosperity that is the envy of many nations, Sir James said.

"Its progress underlines the fact that African nations can attain the full rights of self-government through the slow but sure progress of education and training."

Clear, sunny weather which gave Victoria its warmest temperature of the year Thursday—59 degrees—will continue Saturday "and possibly Sunday," according to weatherman William Mackie.

He predicted clear skies for tonight with temperatures ranging between 32 and 40 degrees, and a maximum Saturday of 60 degrees. Winds will be light to northerly at 15 miles per hour.

"There is plenty of storm activity west of us over the Pacific Ocean," Mr. Mackie said, "but so far it's being deflected to the north."

A concert by the Williamette University Choir of Salem, Oregon, will be given in Oak Bay United Church, 1368 Mitchell Street, next Monday at 8 p.m.

Women's Auxiliary of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's) will hold an Easter Bonnet parade at the Golden Slipper, 1318 Broad Street, Saturday, from 2 to 4 p.m.

On a speaking tour of the United States, Sir James was "surprised" at the interest shown by Americans in Africa generally. But many could not understand why Nigeria did not align itself more definitely with the western powers.

In Victoria tonight, Sir James will begin a speaking tour of Canada under auspices of the English-Speaking Union. He will address a meeting of the Victoria branch in the War Amputees Hall, 1610 Oak Bay Avenue at 8:15 p.m.

Saturday evening he will speak in the auditorium of the University of British Columbia.

"A" group of the junior branch of the Victoria Natural History Society will meet on Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at the Monterey parking lot for a field trip to Logan Park on Viaduct Avenue off Interurban Road.

Greater Victoria Association for the retarded will hold a meeting for election of officers on Tuesday, April 10, at 8 p.m. at 1450 Elford Street.

Dale Carnegie Alumni Association will hold a meeting on Monday at 8 p.m. in the Woodsworth Hall, 721 Courtney Street.

The Color Photographic Association of Canada will meet at 322 Plasket Place on Monday at 8 p.m. Mrs. Mary Chilcott will give instruction on the use of the camera.

The annual meeting of the Community Welfare Council of Greater Victoria will be held April 11 at 8 p.m. in the auditorium of St. John Ambulance Headquarters, 941 Pandora Avenue. J. M. Anguish, executive director, will speak on "The Role of a Community Welfare Council."

Winners of the spring party tournament conducted by the Victoria Allmasters Duplicate Bridge Club were: Phil Hagel, Otto Leestman, Paul Smith and Jim Dupray.

Olson Motors, Cook and Yates Streets, reported thefts from two cars on their lot Wednesday night.

The accessories missing were not noticed until Thursday noon.

Stolen from a 1954 Ford were a radiator, windshield, headlight hose, custom radio, headlight and two headlight rims.

A fire and rim were also removed from a 1962 Zephyr. Total value of the parts taken exceeded $250.

Models will be used, and the project will be housed in one of the huts at the Gordon Head campus. It will be moved into the new science building when the latter is available.

Dr. John L. Climenhaga, head of the department, said the grant is the first to be made to the department.

"Research will play an increasing part in our program here," he said. "We are getting under way on a number of projects, and are looking forward to starting more."

OVERNIGHT SWITCH from Foul Bay to University Road on some signs near Victoria College gave 18-year-old Mary Scott, 2994 Oakdowne, food for thought today. Local councils have been asked to approve the name switch but a petition protesting it will be circulated Saturday. In the meantime persons or persons unknown seem to have jumped the gun. Last people to be suspected, of course, are college students. (Times Photo.)

Foul Bay Rd. Change Near But Not Final

The day when Foul Bay Road will become University Way is drawing closer but municipal officials in Saanich indicate the decision is not irreversible.

Councils in Victoria and Oak Bay have approved of the name change in principle and Saanich is expected to follow suit Monday. Residents and the Post Office would normally be notified and then new signs posted.

Although no official protests have been received from residents concerned at any of the three municipal halls, a petition will be circulated along Foul Bay Saturday afternoon.

PETITION DELAYED

City businessman Stuart Hager apologized today for the delay in organizing the petition but said it was due to the necessity of weeding out renters from owners.

"Maybe we acted too hastily," said Victoria Alderman Michael Griffin.

"If a sizable number of people directly involved people should take a second look at it."

Other officials were also asked if they would change their decisions in the event of an "anti-University Way" petition.

"That's a pretty stupid question," said Oak Bay's Reeve George Murdoch.

WOULD OBJECT

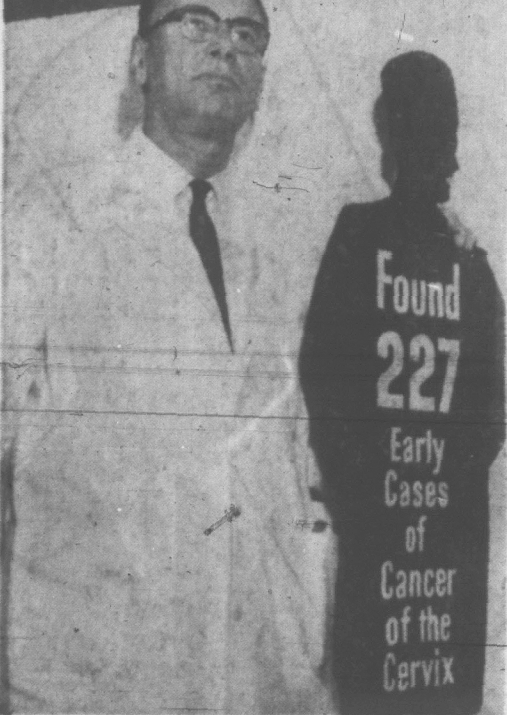

"If we get enough people petitioning against it, I suppose we probably would reconsider," he added that he, himself, would take strong exception to living on a road with the name of Foul Bay.

In Saanich, the works committee, composed of councillors, has recommended the name change to council and it is expected to approve it Monday night.

"I'm not against the old name," said Coun. Hugh Curtis, "but the name change is a good idea and we should do everything we can to publicize it."

Peace Power Reports Open To UBC Profs

VANCOUVER — Special reports on the Peace River hydro project will be made available to a University of British Columbia group of professors who last month criticized the $600,000,000 project.

Dr. Gordon Shrum, chairman of the BC Electric and the BC Energy Board, said Thursday the professors will be given copies of the Mirz and McLellan and Sir Alexander Gibb reports on the Peace which were prepared for the energy board.

To assist them in their study the professors will also be given the services of Dr. John Davis, BCE research director and the energy board's chief engineer, Ralph Purcell.

The move by Dr. Shrum followed differences of opinion on the practicability of building the Peace project.

HIGHWAY TALKS SET

KITIMAT — Four northern Social Credit members of the B.C. legislature whose constituencies border controversial Highway 16 will meet with the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Central B.C. and Alaskan affiliates at Hazelton April 16.

Highways Minister Gagliardi will also attend the meeting to discuss the highway which links Prince Rupert and Prince George.

UP TO SHIP OWNERS

VANCOUVER — The future of 11 striking Spanish seamen from the Panamanian freighter Hernan Cortes depends on the decision of the vessel's Spanish owners.

The men left the ship in Port Alberni, complaining the food was bad and working conditions poor. They are now in a sailors' home here where their food and lodging bill is being met by the ship's agents.

WHY BCE SEIZED

KAMLOOPS — The federal government's unwillingness to co-operate with the provincial government in bringing down power rates made it necessary for the B.C. government to take over the B.C. Electric, R. N. Thompson, Social Credit national leader, said in an interview Thursday.

He charged Justice Minister Fulton is inconsistent in his objections to power export, since gas and oil have been exported to the United States for years.

FREED OF ASSAULT

TRAIL — A charge of assault arising out of ill feeling towards the Sons of Freedom Doukhobors, was dismissed in police court Thursday.

Arthur Haywood of Trail, was found not guilty of assaulting and injuring an international Woodworkers of America official, Joe Esakin of Grand Forks.

VANCOUVER ISLAND ROUNDUP

$1 Million Industry Threatened, Angus Probe Told

COURTENAY — The Angus Commission has been told $1,000,000 tourist industry if the Courtenay-Cornox are may vanish unless salmon runs on the Puntledge River are restored.

Hydro installations on the river of the B.C. Power Commission have been blamed for losses in fish numbers. H. F. Angus, the sole commissioner at hearings here and earlier in Vancouver, will decide whether increased facilities are needed to preserve the salmon. The Chamber of Commerce here said fish and power are both needed, but fishing must be looked on as a major industry and the safe ascent and descent of fish must be assured.

Other briefs lending strong support to the wily fish came from the Auto Courts and Resorts Association, the Save Our Salmon Committee, Salmon Unlimited of Campbell River, the Native Sons of Canada, and Roderick Haig-Brown, well-known Campbell River fisherman, naturalist and writer.

The hearings are continuing.

CAMPBELL RIVER — Klamathosaurus is the name chosen by Recreation Minister Earle C. Westwood for Campbell River's friendly serpent.

The winning name, one of more than 50 submitted in a contest run by weekly newspaper publisher Murray Post, was entered by young John Denidoff of Campbell River. He won $10.

In announcing his selection, Mr. Westwood noted the contest created "a great deal of interest across the country." The name "Klamathosaurus" was noted, was the Indian name for the spit at the entrance to Campbell River where the serpent was known to have been seen many times.

CAMPBELL RIVER — A giant "sourdough" supper will be one of the highlights of the novel "Highway Celebration Day" to be held here April 12.

Day-long ceremonies will mark the start of work on the final stage of the Campbell River Kelsey Bay road, and publicize what will soon be the new route to northern B.C. and Alaska.

Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi has approved a busy schedule for the day. In addition to taking part in three motorcades, participating in sod-turfing ceremonies along the new highway, and a tree-planting ceremony, he will also speak three times during the day.

He will address a student assembly at the high school in the morning, speak to a luncheon gathering of district business and civic leaders, and give the main address at the public banquet in the evening.

The big supper, with the sourdough theme, will be held in the Community Hall, and will be served chuckwagon style. Attendance will be limited to 400, and more than half the tickets have already been taken.

Alaskan representative at the ceremonies will be Mr. R. Downing, commissioner of highways and public works for the state. Others taking part in events during the day will be Dan Campbell, MLA for the district; William Hawkins, commissioner of Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau and heads of northern Chambers of Commerce.

PARKSVILLE — A seminar for Vancouver Island school trustees will open tonight at the Island Hall, then continue all day Saturday and to noon on Sunday.

It is a joint project of the University of B.C. and B.C. School Trustees' Association, and will have as its theme "The Role of the Trustee in Education."

The seminar staff will include Dr. Kenneth F. Argue, professor of education, UBC; Dr. Denis C. Smith, associate professor, college of education, UBC; Dr. Coolie Vernie, UBC professor of adult education; Bert Curtis, assistant director, UBC extension department; and Frank Wilson, Chilliwack city solicitor and past president of the BCSTA.

GANGES — Winners of a school oratorical contest here were Frances Fennell, grade IV; Darlene Marcotte, grade VII; and John Sturdy, grade XII, leaders of elementary, junior, and senior divisions respectively.

Judges of the contest, sponsored by Salt Spring Island PTA, were Dr. Norah Hughes, G.S. Humphreys, and A. W. Wolfe-Milner. Mrs. A. McManus, PTA president, was chairman.

GANGES — Five teachers from Salt Spring Island Elementary High School are taking a four-day course, on successive Saturdays, on new methods of teaching mathematics in elementary and junior high school grades.

They are J. M. Evans, principal, Mrs. A. J. Hepburn, Mrs. W. J. Seymour, Mrs. P. A. Jackson, and Mrs. D. McLeod. Nearly 28,000 Canadians borrowed thousands of sickroom supplies from Red Cross Loan Cupboards maintained in 584 communities across the nation last year. This is a free service.

Metropolitan Victoria
14th Largest in Canada

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The population of Victoria's metropolitan area soared to 154,152 in 1961, an increase of 36.2 per cent in the past 10 years, according to the report of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics based on the latest census.

The population of the incorporated city of Victoria alone now stands at 54,941, an increase of 7 per cent in the last decade.

Fully 60 per cent of Canada's population growth in the 1951-

61 decade took place within the metropolitan area boundaries of 17 major centres in Canada, including Winnipeg, with over two-thirds of this metropolitan growth occurring outside the main central cities.

HIGH RATE

The 1961 census indicates that the growth within metropolitan areas is continuing at a high rate compared with the rest of Canada.

Victoria's metropolitan area census in 1961 stood at 154,152 compared with 133,829 in 1956 and 113,207 in 1951. The per-

Early Election
Threat

OTTAWA—Prime Minister John Diefenbaker today threatened to dissolve parliament and go to the country in an immediate general election if the Opposition did not stop "filibustering."

The threat was made during the morning question period after a number of questions were directed at the prime minister about the government's election plans, by Liberal front benchers.

"In view of the Opposition filibustering," said Mr. Diefenbaker, "it may be necessary to make an early answer which will satisfy" Opposition members.

EXAMPLE SET

He was replying to a plea voiced by J. W. Pickersgill, former Liberal immigration minister, to follow the example set by former Prime Minister St. Laurent in 1949 and state "frankly and in a statesmanlike way" what the government's intentions are.

The exchange was sparked by another Liberal front bench, former Liberal health minister Martin. He cited an earlier statement by External Affairs Minister Howard Green that a heads-of-state meeting may be held in Geneva shortly and asked whether this would interfere with any plans of the prime minister. He was obviously referring to Mr. Diefenbaker's plans for an election.

The prime minister did not reply directly. However, he said that Mr. Martin had personal motives for calling for an election.

TAUNT HURLED BACK

Mr. Martin thumped his desk in applause for the prime minister's declaration, but no one else did. "He is the only one who applauds," noted Mr. Diefenbaker. He went on to say that Mr. Martin wanted an election because he was anxious to replace Lester Pearson as leader of the Opposition.

Mr. Pickersgill then took the floor and asked the prime minister to disclose his election plans.

Majority opinion appears to single out June 18 as the most likely date.

MOTEL OWNERS BUY C & C TAXI

Heaney Cartage Sold
For Nearly $1 Million

Heaney Cartage and Storage Ltd. has been sold to a Vancouver firm, it was announced today on the heels of news that the C & C Transportation Company also has changed hands.

The two transactions, involving firms among the oldest of their kind in Victoria, were entirely separate. Both will continue operating under their present names.

Johnston National Storage Ltd., biggest cartage and storage company in Canada, bought out the Heaney firm for almost $1,000,000.

C & C, which operates a fleet of more than 50 taxis and buses, was bought by Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Nordal, Victoria motel operators, for an undisclosed sum.

William Heaney, scion and majority shareholder of the family firm established in 1890, will continue as a director.

Hope they haven't created a hydro-headed monster.

See they're goin' to play baseball on the College Campus. Now we kin look fer some educated bats.

Mr. Uncle Zeke's worried. Sez if a gov'mint represents the people, how come it can do things nobody wants?

2 Heads Named
By Government

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Legislative Reporter

The new B.C. Hydro and Power Authority today took over all B.C. Electric and B.C. Power Commission operations.

The merger was completed at a special cabinet meeting Thursday night immediately after the end of the legislative session which set up the new authority.

Reductions of up to 20 per cent in electric light bills for all residents of the province served by the new authority are expected within the next few days.

With the proclamation of the special act merging the public power utilities, the cabinet also appointed two men to run jointly the new agency.

Sharing the job of chairman at a salary of $40,000 each are Dr. Gordon Shrum, former B.C. Electric chairman, and Dr. H. L. Keenleyside, former boss of the power commission.

Seven other directors were appointed:

Einar Gunderson, who gets $27,500;

W. C. Mearns, $27,500;

A. Lee, $27,500;

Lands, Forests and Water Resources Minister Ray Williston and Mines Minister Kenneth Kiernan, with no extra salary;

F. A. Smith and J. Dunsmuir, will receive directors' fees of $2,500 each.

Dr. Shrum, Dr. Keenleyside, Mr. Gunderson, Mr. Mearns and Mr. Lee were also appointed to the executive management committee which will run actual operation of the new B.C. Hydro.

Mr. Williston, Mr. Kiernan, Mr. Smith and Mr. Dunsmuir are directors only. All the directors were either on the board of B.C. Electric or on the power commission.

Two BCE Directors Dropped

Two B.C. Electric directors, former lieutenant-governor Frank M. Ross and lawyer Arthur Faulk, are dropped from the new agency.

Dr. Keenleyside's salary is doubled with his new appointment. Dr. Shrum gets the same as he did with B.C. Electric.

With the merger comes a new legal twist to the battle by former B.C. Electric shareholders for better compensation and cancellation of last August's takeover legislation.

B.C. Electric assets were placed in the hands of a receiver by the courts two weeks ago.

But the merger eliminates B.C. Electric, puts its assets under the new B.C. Hydro, and bans any court action regarding the former private utility. Whether or not this cancels the receivership is not yet clear.

But a court judgment on the government's appeal of this action is expected within days. Two other power developments followed the merger order today.

Mr. Williston was officially sworn into office as minister of water resources as well as lands and forests.

The ceremony took place at 9 a.m. at Government House. A new department of water resources was established by the legislature.

The other new move was appointment of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce as banker for B.C. Hydro.

Power-Packed
Session Ends

By FRANK RUTTER

The legislative session that began with New Year's "goodwill" resolutions on all sides ended Thursday night, the longest in 42 years, after two fierce and bitter weeks of debate on power and politics.

Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes prorogued the House at 8:15 p.m. to climax two weeks of day and night sittings which brought the 45-day session to a close. There were 17 night sittings.

The ceremony made law of the two bills which precipitated the temper of the punishing finale: Bill 84, merging B.C. Electric and B.C. Power Commission; Bill 85, changing last August's B.C. Electric takeover legislation to kill recourse to the courts for shareholders seeking better compensation.

Mr. Pearkes made a brief speech singling out various pieces of legislation as noteworthy accomplishments of the session.

He mentioned the B.C. Electric-Power Commission merger as of "benefit to the people and industry of the province."

But he made no mention at all of the other big power bill.

Algeria War Flares
As 5 Moslems Slain

ALGIERS (Reuters)—The terrorist Secret Army Organization exploded 20 plastic bombs and killed five Moslems and wounded 18 in sub-machine-gun attacks in Moslem quarters of Algiers during the night.

Four of the Moslems died when the European terrorists opened fire on a large apartment building in Pointe Pe-cade, a seaside suburb, and the fifth was killed in the Bir Mandreis quarter where most of the plastic bombs were planted.

Many of the bombs were placed beneath cars and trucks in Bir Mandreis and when they exploded, terrorists lying in ambush opened fire on the Moslems who ran out onto the streets.

99.9% Dial Phones

By the end of this year, 99.9 per cent of the telephones on Vancouver Island will be dial operated, according to Gordon C. MacDonald, Island division manager of the B.C. Telephone Co., with headquarters in Victoria.

He said 11 new automatic systems are scheduled to go into service as follows:

Port Alberni, at midnight Saturday; Cobble Hill and Lake Cowichan, in May; Port Hardy, Port Alice and Port McNeill in October; and Courtenay, Comox and Denman Island in November.

Money to be spent this year on new construction will include about $1,400,000 in Victoria; $1,700,000 for Nanaimo; $1,000,000 at Campbell River; and $2,000,000 for all districts, for a total on Vancouver Island of $3,200,000.

$1 Million Industry Threatened, Angus Probe Told

COURTENAY—The Angus Commission has been told a $1,000,000 tourist industry in the Courtenay-Comox area may vanish unless salmon runs on the Puntledge River are restored.

Hydro installations on the river of the B.C. Power Commission have been blamed for losses in fish numbers. H. F. Angus, the sole commissioner at hearings here and earlier in Vancouver, will decide whether increased facilities are needed to preserve the salmon.

The Chamber of Commerce here said fish and power are both needed, but fishing must be looked on as a major industry and the safe ascent and descent of fish must be assured.

Other briefs lending strong support to the wily fish came from the Auto Courts and Resorts Association, the Save Our Salmon Committee, Salmon Unlimited of Campbell River, the Native Sons of Canada, and Roderick Haig-Brown, well-known Campbell River fisherman, naturalist and writer.

chosen by Recreation Minister Earle C. Westwood for Campbell River's friendly sea serpent.

The winning name, one of more than 50 submitted in a contest run by weekly newspaper publisher Murray Fokitt, was entered by young John Demidoff of Campbell River. He won $10.

In announcing his selection, Mr. Westwood noted the contest created "a great deal of interest across the country." The name "Klamatho," he noted, was the Indian name for the spit at the entrance to Campbell River where the serpent was known to have been seen many times.

PARKSVILLE—A seminar for Vancouver Island school trustees will open tonight at the Island Hall, then continue all day Saturday and to noon on Sunday.

It is a joint project of the University of B.C. and B.C. School Trustees' Association, and will have as its theme "The Role of the Trustee in Education."

The seminar staff will include Dr. Kenneth F. Argue, professor of education, UBC; Dr. Denis C. Smith, associate professor, college of education, UBC; Dr. Coole Vernie, UBC professor of adult education; Bert Curtis, assistant director, UBC extension department; and Frank Wilson, Chilliwack city solicitor and past president of the BCSTA.

GANGES—Winners of a school oratorical contest here were Frances Fennell, grade IV; Darlene Marcotte, grade VII; and John Sturdy, grade XII, leaders of elementary, junior, and senior divisions respectively.

Judges of the contest, sponsored by Salt Spring Island PTA, were Dr. Norah Hughes, G. S. Humphreys, and A. W. Wolfe-Miller. Mrs. A. McManus, PTA president, was chairman.

GANGES—Five teachers from Salt Spring Island Elementary High School are taking a four-day course, on successive Saturdays, on new methods of teaching mathematics in elementary and junior high school grades.

They are J. M. Evans, principal, Mrs. A. J. Hepburn, Mrs. W. J. Seymour, Mrs. P. A. Jackson, and Mrs. D. McLeod.

Venezuela Severs Ties

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—President Romulo Betancourt today recalled Venezuela's entire diplomatic mission from Buenos Aires and suggested that all other nations of the hemisphere refuse to recognize the new Argentine government.

Paul Martin (L—Essex East) said that if this were the measure of foreseeable achievement, one could see the great difficulty in reaching a comprehensive agreement.

Mr. Green said he believes there would be "great value" in acceptance of the Canadian proposal for a nuclear ban in outer space.

There was no reason why agreement couldn't be reached on this matter. Once weapons of mass destruction were in or bit, it would be "much tougher" to do anything about it.

Mr. Green said there has been a suggestion for informal meetings at the conference at which no record could be kept and delegates could "let their hair down."

At another point, he said foreign ministers are like seagulls. When one leaves, they all leave. One is "considered a bit of a scab if he stays around."

He said he is prepared to go back to Geneva at any time "if some of the others do."

Mr. Green did not repeat in the Commons tart comments about U.S. policy which he made to reporters Thursday night at the airport.

He told reporters then that any resumption of U.S. nuclear testing would be a setback for the conference and that "usually" Canada has better ideas than the U.S.

REPORTS ON GENEVA TALKS

Green Sees Hope Of Agreement

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Green said today he gets annoyed "with all this attitude of hopelessness" about disarmament, Berlin and nuclear tests.

The remark was fairly typical of his folksy report to the Commons on the Geneva disarmament conference from which he returned Thursday night.

He said there is no reason why there shouldn't be East-West agreement on at least some disarmament points fairly soon.

The minister said Canada's main purpose at the conference was to pinpoint subjects on which there is near agreement between the United States and Russia. There were "quite a few" of these areas where it wouldn't take a great deal of effort to get the two sides together.

Mr. Green said he hopes that "before too long" agreement will be reached on the pre-arranged for a disarmament treaty.
